He received his doctorate in philosophy in Prague (1943). He was stationed in Grimsby, Ont. (1947-1948), in Chicago (1950-1955), in the Bronx (pastor 1955-1964), in Vienna (pastor 1964-1969, lector in the Ukrainian language at the University of Vienna 1967-1971), New York City (assistant pastor 1971-1975), and Amsterdam, NY (pastor 1975-1980). He died on April 8, 1980.

PREFACE

The millennium of the official acknowledgement in 988 of Christianity as the state religion of Kyivan Rus' is approaching. The question arises as to who taught the people the Christian faith in order to baptize them, and who kept the faith alive throughout the centuries, instructing the people in what they should believe and what they should do to be good Christians.

This teaching office must have been held primarily by the clergy, both secular and monastic, and the clergy must in turn have been educated somewhere and by someone. The Kyivan Church, which was one Church in the beginning, was split into two after the Union of Florence, when in 1448 was elected the autocephalous Metropolitan Jona for the Muscovite dioceses. It was split again at the Union of Berestja, and is now five, 1)Roman Uniate, 2)Muscovite Uniate, 3)Constantinopolitan Uniate and 4 and 5) two Autocephalous Churches. Although it would be of interest to learn about the education of the clergy of each of these five Churches, the following work will be an attempt to treat only of the education of the clergy of the Roman Uniate Church, a subject which has interested me for many years. In 1975, I published The Ukrainian and Armenian Pontifical Seminaries of Lviv (1665-1784), the first part of which presented a general aspect of education of the Roman Uniate clergy in their native land, and in pontifical colleges outside their native land. I also have published two articles on the subject, the first regarding the Pontifical College of Propaganda Fide, in "Analecta OSBM" 9 (1974) 202-222, and the second regarding the Pontifical Greek College, in "Analecta OSBM" 10 (1979) 132-192. Both articles included annotated lists of Kyivan rite students, with all the vital information for each student that I could find in the Roman archives. The study which follows includes some of the information from these earlier works, but encompasses all of the pontifical colleges, universities and institutes, as well as several seminaries and universities of central and western Europe in which Kyivan rite students were educated.

The term Byzantine Kyivan rite is used, because the origin of the rite is Byzantine, and its development took place in the Metropolitanate of Kyiv and the eparchies connected with Kyiv. The rite at one time was called Ruthenian, and is still so called by some, whereas others refer to it as Ukrainian, or simply as Byzantine. The term Byzantine alone is too general, and the terms Ruthenian and Ukrainian have political nuances and would be better avoided for that reason. On the other hand, Kyivan indicates a cultural center and a common historical source without useless national discussions.

The research, besides considerable digging around in the archives of Rome, entailed two trips to Vienna, one to Budapest, and one to Innsbruck. I also went to Prjašiv, but the diocesan archives and library were confiscated in 1950, and were not available to me.

It would have been impossible to complete this study without help and willingness on the part of rectors and archivists to supply needed information. It would not be possible to name all of these kind helpers, but I would like to express my special thanks to the following: Father Isydom Patrylo, Protoarchimandrite of the Basilians for his helpful suggestions, Father Porfyrij Pidručnyj, Secretary General of the Basilians, for information from the archives of the Basilian General Curia and for permission to use his personal notes from the archives of the Propaganda Fide, Father Sofron Mudryj, Rector of St. Josafat College, for his help and permission to use the college archives, Father Olivier Raquez, OSB, Rector of the Greek College, for permission to use the archives of the Greek College for several weeks, Mitratus Ivan Choma, Rector of St. Sofija Seminary, for permission to use material from the archives of St. Sofija of Rome, Dr. Franz Skacel for admitting me to the stacks of the University of Vienna, Dr. Annamarie Fenzl for help in the archdiocesan archives of Vienna, Dr. Szilárd Keresztes, Auxiliary Bishop of Hajdudorog, and Dr. István Diós, archivist and librarian of the Central Seminary of Budapest, for help in collecting material in Budapest. I hope that the resulting study will merit the help they offered, and be an incentive to others to continue the study of the Kyivan rite Church as an entity and identity within the Universal Church.

INTRODUCTION

The approaching millennium is not the celebration of the baptism of Kyivan Rus', but rather of the acknowledgement in 988 by Prince Volodymyr (978-1015) of Christianity as the official religion of Kyiv and of the Kyivan Rus' State. There were Christians in Kyiv earlier, as evidenced by the fact that there were Christians among those who signed the treaty of Ihor with the Greeks in 944. Princess Olha, the ruler of Kyiv from 945 until 958, and the grandmother of Volodymyr, was a Christian. During the early reign of Volodymyr, Teodor and Ivan, father and son, were martyred for the faith. Since there were Christians before 988, there must have been some form of Church to take care of them.

Patriarch Photius mentions that in 860, after the siege of Constantinople by the Rus' army, a bishop was sent to the Rus' and converted them. Since the city of Constantinople was saved only by a miracle, the siege must have been conducted by a strong army of a state, and not merely by some local adventurers. Nestor says that it was the army of the Kyivan Rus' State, so that the beginning of Christianity in the Kyivan State was probably after the siege of 860.

Since Constantinople was closer to Kyiv than any other Christian center, and since two treaties of Oleh and Ihor show that there were commercial ties between Kyiv and Constantinople, it was only natural that Christianity according to the Byzantine rite would have been accepted. Having the Byzantine rite Church in Kyiv, and marrying a Byzantine rite Greek princess, Volodymyr could hardly have officially introduced into his state any other rite than the Byzantine.

Up until the year 1037, there are no local, Greek or other sources indicating the organization and dependence of the Kyivan Church; all that historians have written is only supposition and theory. Nestor mentions only that the Metropolitanate of Kyiv was established in 1037, and gives the name of Theognost as Metropolitan. It would seem that the Kyivan Church, previously independent, in 1037 was united with Constantinople, thus becoming the Constantinopolitan Uniate Church of Kyiv.

Metropolitan Rahoza of Kyiv called a synod in Berestja in 1596 to conclude union of the Kyivan Church with Rome, but those opposed to the union called a counter synod in Berestja at the same time, so that there were two simultaneous synods — the Roman Uniate and the Constantinopolitan Uniate, resulting in two Churches. The Constantinopolitan Uniate Church changed its allegiance in 1686, and passed under the jurisdiction of Moscow, uniting itself with Moscow, and thus becoming the Muscovite Uniate Church, gradually having to accept the Muscovite rite.

In the Constantinopolitan Uniate Church, there does not seem to have been any effort on the part of Constantinople to train the priesthood. In all the time of union with Constantinople, except for a very few monks, it is not known that any went to study in Constantinople or Greece. There is no evidence that Constantinople had any interest in the education of the Kyivan clergy, nor is it known that any Greeks went to Kyiv to teach, except for Arsenij who went to Lviv, and Nykyfor and Lukaris to Ostrih, for a short time at the end of the 16th century. Some Greeks went to Kyiv in the 11th century, but they were architects and painters. Kyiv did have Byzantine rite liturgical books in the Slavic language, and books by Greek authors translated into Slavic, but they had been translated outside of Greece. There were a few works written by Greek metropolitans, predominantly of a polemic nature, teaching the Kyivans not Christianity, but how bad the Latins were.

After the Union of Berestja, the hierarchy and clergy of both the Roman Uniate and the Constantinopolitan Uniate Churches put considerable effort into the education of their clergy. The Constantinopolitan Uniate Church opened some schools for youth, where also candidates for the priesthood could be trained. In 1632, Petro Mohyla, the Archimandrite of Pečerska Lavra (later Metropolitan of Kyiv from 1633 to 1646), opened a college in Kyiv. Later, when the Constantinopolitan Uniate Church changed to union with Moscow, in two charters of 1694 and 1701 the college obtained the title of Academy from Moscow, and was for a while the unique institution of higher learning for the clergy and laity of the Russian Autocephalous and Ukrainian Muscovite Uniate Churches. Moscow bestowed the title of Academy, but suppressed Latin as the teaching language, and introduced not Ukrainian, but Russian, in its place. Moscow paid, and still pays, considerable attention to the education of the Muscovite Uniate Clergy; but the value of that education is questionable, since the students are brainwashed of their organizational, cultural and ritual identity.

The Autocephalous Church, which was formed of former Muscovite Uniates in Ukraine in 1920, now exists only in diaspora, split into two groups. It has two training centers for its clergy, one in Winnipeg, Canada and the other in Boundbrook, New Jersey, U.S.A. both organized after World War II.

The greatest effort to educate the clergy was put forth, not by the Constantinopolitan Uniate, Muscovite Uniate, or Autocephalous Churches, but by the Roman Uniate Church. The Roman Uniate hierarchy had extensive contact with the west, many of them having been educated in pontifical colleges and seminaries, or in western universities, so they knew the value of western education. The popes and the Roman Curia afforded the chance to numerous students to be educated in pontifical colleges and/or in central and western European seminaries. Besides, Rome was continuously putting pressure on the Kyivan hierarchy to found their own local seminaries under their own supervision. The level of the Roman Uniate clergy gradually rose, and with time became equal to western European theological standards.

It was Metropolitan Rahoza (1589-1599) who concluded the union with Rome, and Metropolitan Potij (1600-1613) who fought out the legality of the Union, but it was Metropolitan Rutskyj (1613-1637) who gave the Roman Uniate Church its internal vitality, and firmly joined the Kyivan Church with Rome and the West, through education of its clergy in Rome and western pontifical seminaries. His continuous letters to Rome made Rome aware of the problems of his Church, and aroused interest in it. The indefatigable activity of Rutskyj and the Kyivan hierarchy, and the martyrdom of St. Josafat, convinced Rome that the Union of Berestja and the ties of Kyiv with Rome were a reality to be taken into account, and Rome began to offer help.

Rutskyj studied for a while in Prague, where two pontifical colleges and an academy had existed for about thirty years, but the documentary proof that he lived at the pontifical college is lacking. In Prague he probably had the chance to observe the colleges and academy, but later, as a regular student at the Greek College in Rome (1597-1603), he had the opportunity personally to experience the methods, the value and the fruit of western education. After he returned home in 1603, and entered the Basilians in 1607, he soon became the superior of the monastery in Vilno, and in 1611 was made Bishop of Halyč and Coadjutor of the Metropolitan of Kyiv with the right of succession. In 1609, he initiated the effort to send some students to pontifical colleges, sending two to Braunsberg in that year, and three to Vilno in 1611. He became Metropolitan of Kyiv in 1613, and when he made the visit ad limina to Rome in 1615, he asked Pope Paul V for places in pontifical colleges, and was promised 6 in Braunsberg, 6 in Vilno, 4 in the Greek College, and 2 each in Olomouc, Prague and Vienna. Later 2 places were added in the Greek College, and 2 were promised in Graz by the emperor through the intercession of the Nuncio of Vienna. Altogether there were then 26 places.

This all sounds very encouraging and hopeful, and would have been so if, as historians often seem to think, they had been reality. Unfortunately, Rutskyj was promised "viva voce", and did not obtain confirmation on paper in black and white. The Roman Curia never denied the promises, but never expressly supported them against the rectors of the pontifical colleges, some of whom made every possible difficulty in accepting students. Even when the students gained admission, they were sometimes treated badly.

In the middle of the 17th century, some Kyivan rite students began to be admitted to the Pontifical College of Propaganda Fide. In 1704, the Janiana Leopoldiana foundation was set up at the Adalbertine College in Tyrnava, and the students from Mukačevo were promised three places there. In 1709 the Pontifical Ukrainian Seminary of Lviv was opened under the direction of the Theatine Fathers, being connected to the Pontifical Armenian Seminary which had been founded in 1665. In 1753, the Ruthenian College of Vilno became Ruthenian in fact, having previously accepted predominantly Latin rite students. In 1774, the Barbareum was opened in Vienna by Empress Maria Theresa, and it had its influence although it lasted only ten years. These were followed by the Lviv General Seminary, founded by Emperor Joseph II in 1784, Budapest Central Seminary in 1803, the Stadtkonvikt of Vienna in 1803 and the St. Augustine Institute of Vienna in 1816. In 1845 the Greek College was reopened in Rome, with so many Kyivan rite students that the Greek College came to be commonly called the Greek Ruthenian College. The Central Seminary of Vienna was opened in 1852 and the Seminary of Esztergom began to accept students from Mukačevo and Prjašiv in 1873. In 1897, through the efforts of Pope Leo XIII and Emperor Franz Joseph I, the Ruthenian College was opened in Rome, and the Kyivan rite students from the Greek College were transferred there. In 1901, St. Hieronymus was opened with places for students from the eparchy of Križevci.

After World War I, three new seminaries were opened, which accepted students of Kyivan rite — the Russicum in 1929, Dubno Pontifical Seminary in 1931 and St. Andrew College in Munich in 1932. During World War II, two institutes were opened — the Damascenum and the Institutum Ecclesiasticum Hungaricum, both in 1940, and some Kyivan rite students were accepted in each. After World War II, the Hirschberg-Culemborg Seminary was opened (1946-1950). In Rome, after the war, the Byzantine Ruthenian Metropolitan Province of Pittsburgh began sending students to the Russicum, to St. Thomas Convict and to the two North American Colleges.

In this study are not included those students who studied in Erlau (Eger, Agria) in the Hungarian Seminary, beginning in 1754 and continuing for a few years. Also not included are those who studied in Litoměřice for a few months during the year 1914/15, nor a group of Basilians who were at Olomouc in 1939 and moved to Prague in the January of 1941, nor those students who finished their studies in Latin rite seminaries after Hirschberg-Culemborg was closed in 1950.

In 1932, the Basilians transferred their General Curia to Rome, and provided place for their students in the residence of the General Curia, sending them mainly to the Gregorianum and then to the Anselmianum. The Basilians of Grottaferrata accepted some men of Kyivan rite into their community and began sending them to study at the Gregorianum. Next were the Salesians, whose Kyivan rite students studied in Bolengo, Torino and Rome during and after the war. The Redemptorists of Kyivan rite studied in Belgium, but two came to Rome during World War II to study at the Angelicum, and some came after the war to PIOS. Then came two Franciscans — one from the U.S.A. and one from Argentina — both of whom studied at PIOS. The last to come were the Studites, who obtained a house on Lake Albano near Marino for the Stoudion, and who are sending their students to study in Rome.

The spelling of proper names is always a problem when they have been transliterated from the Cyrillic alphabet. In the documents and records, they are often latinized, italianized or spelled as they approximately sounded in different languages, and the same name may be spelled in several ways in various sources — for example Kopijevyč (Copieuicz, Kopjevius) or Jarenbinskyj (Giarenbinski, Giarzebinschi, Jarenbischi) or Šeptyckyj (Sceptychi, Sheptytski, Scheptitsky, Szepetycki). To avoid confusion, here the names have been spelled according to their Ukrainian pronunciation, in the Parisian Slavic Institute system of transliteration. Exceptions have been made for Hungarian names, for names from the Pittsburgh Metropolitanate, and for names of obvious foreign origin. The given names are mostly as they are in the Ukrainian language. Geographical names of Ukrainian origin have been left as they are in the Ukrainian language, and others spelled as they are in English. In some cases, when there are considerable differences in the spellings of a name, in the alphabetical index the variant spellings will be found as "see references".

The work is divided into six chapters. The first five chapters present student lists, preceded by short, informative, historical sketches of the respective colleges, seminaries, universities and institutes themselves. The intention was not to write the history of each of these institutions, but simply to give a brief general background of each to put the student lists into their proper perspective. More information is given about those institutions which are less well known, or when sources and bibliography concerning them are less available. The sixth chapter contains the titles available of doctoral theses in theology, philosophy and special studies, defended by those Kyivan rite students listed in the preceding five chapters, with the dates of their defense, except in the cases of Innsbruck and Vienna, where often the date was not specified as being that of defense or only that of acceptance of the thesis.

The study is concluded with an alphabetical list of all the students, indicating under the name of each, a) the college, seminary or religious house with the year of his entrance and the number under which he is listed in that institution, b) the university or institute at which he received a doctorate or did special studies, c) the doctorate he received, if any, and the year in which he received it and the institution from which he received it and d) an indication as to whether his thesis title is listed in chapter VI.

The material for this study was collected primarily from the registers and catalogues of colleges, seminaries and universities, but unfortunately many of these are incomplete or non-existent. If neither registers nor catalogues were available or sufficient, it was then necessary to dig around in the archives, and to glean information from the memories of rectors and former students. In spite of all efforts, the lists are still incomplete in some places, either because the records are lost, or because the information was not of the type considered important enough to keep on file. Some information is not recorded anywhere but in the memories of individuals, and if not collected and recorded here, would in time be lost forever.

Some information is to be found in the schematism of various dioceses, in Rome at the Pontifical Oriental Institute, at the Basilian General Curia and at St. Josafat College, in Vienna in the National Library and at the University, and in Budapest in the National Library. These schematism are not in complete sets, and many volumes are missing from all of the places mentioned.

The scope of this work was not to determine the nationality of anyone. The students are often indicated in the documents as belonging to a certain political state or province, such as Lithuanian, Galician, American, etc., without an indication as to their nationality. A student designated as Lithuanian would with very few exceptions be Ukrainian if he was from the Berestja or Pinsk regions, but Bielorussian if he came from other regions. Rather than nationality, the rite of the student was taken into consideration in compiling the lists. The Kyivan rite includes liturgy, church customs and church laws. Being in the past centuries connected with the Metropolitanate of Kyiv, the dioceses formed a group which has many things together, and has more in common with the old Kyivan Metropolitanate and with the Byzantine Kyivan rite than with the Muscovite Patriarchate and the Byzantine Muscovite rite, or even with the present Byzantine Greek rite of Constantinople. In Europe and all over the world, they form one ritual group, even if different languages are now used to celebrate the Divine Liturgy. The liturgical books are translations from the books of the old Kyivan Metropolitanate, and not from those of the Muscovite Patriarchate.

As Lincoln said, "United we stand, divided we fall". We could accomplish more if united all together. In order to be united and work together, good will is needed first of all. He who has good will, will look for what makes us united, and not for what pulls us apart.

CHAPTER I

COLLEGES, SEMINARIES AND UNIVERSITIES

A. HISTORICAL SKETCHES

1. BRAUNSBERG COLLEGE (Br)

The Pontifical College of Braunsberg was founded by Pope Gregory XIII in 1578, having been proposed by Antonio Possevino, a Jesuit diplomat, former secretary general of the Jesuits and a good friend of the pope. The regulations for the college were promulgated on December 10, 1578, the same day as those for the Pontifical College of Olomouc. They were signed by Bartolomeo Cardinal Gallus of Como, and the provinces from which the students were to be taken were "Svezia, Gothia, Vandalia, Norvegia, Dacia, Pomerania, Prussia, Livonia, Moscovia, Russia seu Lithuania, et Hungaria". For both colleges, there were 100 places assigned altogether, and for the support of these places 2,400 nummi aurei were allotted. Later, for Braunsberg, 1,930.5 scudi were paid from the dataria, but on September 16, 1761, 180 of these scudi were taken for the Seminary of Kraslau (for Latin rite students from Smolensk), thus leaving Braunsberg with 1,750.5 scudi for support.

From the time of the opening of the college until the Union of Berestja (1578-1596) there were ten students of Byzantine Kyivan rite known to have studied there. Strangely enough, none of the alumni were present at the synod of the Union of Berestja, and none of them worked later to promote the union. Another strange thing is the fact that the first student to have attended the college after the Union was not registered until 1608, thus leaving a gap of twelve years.

Metropolitan Rutskyi was able to send some students to Braunsberg, and had been promised six places there by Pope Paul V in 1615, although the rectors disregarded the promise, and there were times when the students were turned away. After an explicit order from Rome in 1636 they were accepted, usually only two at a time. In the beginning, the students were selected and sent by the Metropolitan of Kyiv, and after 1686 by the Basilian General Curia.

The college was closed in 1798 when Rome was declared a republic, and the supporting funds were cut off. During the 220 years of its existence, there were altogether 1,381 students to have studied there, 174 of whom were of Byzantine Kyivan rite. Of these, 158 were indicated as being Basilians. Many of the students did not terminate their studies in Braunsberg, but transferred to other colleges to finish (Vilno, Olomouc, Vienna, Prague and Rome), and some were in the college for less than a year.

After the Greek College in Rome, and the Pontifical Ruthenian Seminary of Vilno, the College of Braunsberg was the most important college for the training of Byzantine Kyivan rite students, during the period of its existence. It was often the starting place, or perhaps the testing place, from which students either returned to their homes or were sent on to other pontifical colleges. Among its alumni are to be counted three metropolitans — Kolenda, Korsak and Volodkovyč, 16 bishops — Bilozor, Chmeljovskyj, Hlynskyj, Kvasninskyj, Malejevskyj, Myhunevyč, Oranskyj, Ovluchynskyj, Pakosta, Paškovskyj, Peškevyč, Mytrofan Sokolynskyj, Lavrentij Sokolynskyj, Šumborskyj, Tomylovyč, and Žolkevskyj, and 7 Basilian protoarchimandrites - Kolenda, Korsak, Martyškevyč, Morhulec, Myhunevyč, Petkevyč and Tomylovyč.

2. BUDAPEST CENTRAL SEMINARY (Bud)

The University of Budapest had its beginning in Tyrnava, where the seat of the Hungarian Primate and the Archbishop of Esztergom was located for over 200 years. In 1635, Cardinal Pázmány, Archbishop Primate, founded in Tyrnava the Pázmán Academy, which was entrusted to the Jesuits. In 1769 the academy was raised to the rank of university. In 1777, the university was transferred to Budapest where it reopened in 1780 under the same name of Pázmány University, which it kept until 1948 when it was renamed the Eötvös Lóránt University. The theological faculty, which had formed part of the university from its beginning, in 1948 was transferred to the Central Seminary with the title of theological academy, and with the right to confer academic degrees in theology.

The Central Seminary of Budapest had originated in Tyrnava in 1648, and had been transferred to Budapest by Emperor Joseph II in 1784. In 1803, it became a selected central seminary for Hungarian students of both Latin and "Greek" rites. Two Byzantine Kyivan rite students from Mukačevo and two from Prjašiv were accepted there as Hungarians regularly. In 1873, when all 21 Greek rite Hungarian students (Ukrainian and Romanian) were recalled from the Central Greek Catholic Seminary of Vienna, and placed in Hungarian seminaries, four additional students were accepted in Budapest - two from Mukačevo and two from Prjašiv. When the diocese of Hajdudorog was created in 1913, and the Administration of Miskolc in 1924, selected students from these two places were sent to the Central Seminary in Budapest. After 1918, very few students from Mukačevo and Prjašiv were sent, because these two dioceses no longer belonged to Hungary, except during World War II, when Mukačevo and part of Prjašiv came again under Hungary.

Six students from the Seminary of Budapest were promoted to the hierarchy of the Kyivan rite - Gebej, Gojdyč, Keresztes, Papp, Stojka and Tovt.

3. DAMASCENUM (Damas)

Rome, 1940-

The Institute of St. John Damascene was founded by the Sacred Congregation for the Oriental Churches in the October of 1940. It was approved by Pope Pius XII on November 9, and inaugurated on December 4, 1940. It was destined for priests of various oriental rites who wished to continue their education by additional studies of oriental rite sciences, and either had no seminaries of their own in Rome or for some reason did not live in them. The Byzantine Kyivan rite students came to the Institute during and immediately after World War II, because St. Josafat Seminary was overcrowded at that time, and also because the Damascenum was located close to St. Mary Major and the library of the Pontifical Oriental Institute, which they needed for their further studies.

In 1949, the Damascenum was transferred to the Janiculum, occupying the building of the Romanian College, which was not being used because there were no students after the communist occupation of Romania. The direction of the Damascenum was at first entrusted to the Jesuits, but since 1974 it has been in the hands of the Carmelites. Three of the students have been promoted to the Kyivan rite hierarchy - Kornyljak, Ljubačivskij and Praško.

4. DUBNO SEMINARY (Dubno)

1931-1939

The Pontifical Oriental Seminary of Dubno in Volyn, which between the two World Wars was under Polish domination, had its beginning in 1928 as the Oriental Diocesan Seminary, founded by the Latin Polish Bishop of Luck. It became the Pontifical Oriental Seminary in 1931, by order of Pope Pius XI (1922-1939), when it was reorganized and its direction entrusted to the Jesuits of Byzantine Muscovite rite, who had their Polish center in Albertyn. Father Antin Dombrowski, SJ, the first rector, remained in office until October 21, 1938, when he became the Provincial of the Jesuits of Byzantine Muscovite rite in Albertyn, and Father Jakiv Morillo was nominated in his place. The seminary was under the supervision of Rome, but evidently the Jesuit Provincial had some control. The student publication mentions that Father Sopucha, the Provincial of Albertyn, was coming there for an official visitation.

On January 21, 1939, the rector notified the students that the Pontifical Oriental Seminary no longer existed, and that in its place would be the Pontifical Oriental Interdiocesan Seminary. From then on jurisdiction over the seminary would be held, besides by Rome, by the biskupi kresowi, or "border bishops". These "border bishops" were five Latin Polish bishops whose dioceses were partially or entirely on Ukrainian or Bielorussian territories then under Polish domination.

The number of students averaged between thirty and forty. They were for the most part Ukrainians, although the Bielorussian, Russian and Polish nationalities were also represented. The students all volunteered to work among the Ukrainian and Bielorussian Orthodox in Volyn, Cholmścyna, Pidlaša, Polissja and Vilenścyna. At some time during his studies, each of the students was supposed to find one of the "border bishops" who would incardinate him and assign him to work among the Orthodox in his territory.

There was only one bishop of Byzantine rite for all these territories, Mykola Čarneckyj, and he was only a ritual Apostolic Visitator. In Dubno he had nothing to say, except to ordain students in the Byzantine Muscovite rite. In fact, most of the students were ordained by him. It seems that not all of the students were able to be incardinated into a diocese of the "border bishops". Two of them went to the Ukrainian diocese of Winnipeg, and some went to work in Lemkivścyna, when it was separated from the diocese of Peremyśl and an Apostolic Administration was created there. Several students from that administration studied in Dubno for a while, but in 1937 they were transferred to the Latin seminary of Tarnow, and later to Cracow.

The students published a journal called "Druh", which appeared once or twice a year. They also had an organization of St. Josafat, with different sections related to various activities. In 1936 they formed another society, the "Bratnja Pomič", or "Brotherly Help", which assisted or made loans to needy students with funds collected from various sources. The seminary library gradually increased to over 10,000 volumes, almost all due to the generosity of several doners.

The seminary ceased to exist when the Soviet Union occupied Dubno in the autumn of 1939.

5. ESZTERGOM SEMINARY (Est)
1826-

The Archdiocese of Esztergom (Gran, Strigonia) was established about the year 1000 by St. Stephen, King of Hungary. It was the capital of Hungary at that time, and since 1235 is mentioned as the primal see of Hungary. In 1543, when the Turks occupied the city, the residence of the primate-archbishop of Esztergom was transferred to Tyrnava, in the northwestern part of the archdiocese, which had never fallen under Turkish domination. Tyrnava remained the seat of the archbishops and their chapters until 1820, in which year they moved back to Esztergom. In 1565 an archdiocesan seminary was founded in Tyrnava, in 1635 was opened the Pázmány Academy which in 1769 was raised to the status of university, and in 1648 was founded the central seminary. The university was entrusted to the Jesuits. In 1877 it was transferred to Budapest, but the archdiocesan seminary remained in Tyrnava. When the residence of the archbishop was transferred to Esztergom in 1820, the archdiocesan seminary also moved in 1826 to Esztergom.

In 1873 the Hungarian government recalled all Hungarian Greek rite students from the Central Greek Catholic Seminary of Vienna, and ordered them to be placed in Hungarian seminaries. At that time, four Byzantine Kyivan rite students — two from Mukačevo and two from Prjašiv — began to be sent to the seminary in Esztergom. From 1908, in the available sources, no more students from Mukačevo or Prjašiv are to be found as having been sent to Esztergom.

6. FREIBURG CONVICT (Freiburg)
1890 —

Freiburg, Switzerland is the seat of the diocese of Geneva, Lausanne and Freiburg. The university was founded in 1889 with faculties of law and philosophy, and in 1890 was added the theological faculty which was entrusted to the Dominicans.

Byzantine Kyivan rite students, only a few according to the schematisms, lived in the theological convict and studied philosophy and theology at the university.

7. GERMANICUM (Ger)

Rome, 1552 —

The Pontifical German College was founded in 1552 by St. Ignatius Loyola. In 1573, Pope Gregory XIII assigned 10,000 scudi annually for 158 students, and in addition gave to the college the income of Santa Sabina on the Aventine, and of San Stefano on Monte Celio, which had formerly belonged to the Hungarian monks of St. Paul the First Hermit. In the beginning, the college was for German students, but the Hungarian College which had been founded in 1578, in 1580 was united with the German College, which was then obliged to accept 30 students from Hungary, and the name was changed to Germanicum-Hungaricum. The Church of St. Apollinaris with the adjoining buildings was given as the site for the college in 1573. In 1798, the college was closed, and it reopened in 1818 in the Casa Professa di Gesù, and several times changed location with about 100 students. In 1944 it was transferred to its own present location at Via S. Nicolò da Tolentino,¹³.

Because several territories of Byzantine Kyivan rite once belonged to Hungary, some Kyivan rite students from these territories were accepted. However, altogether only five students — two from Mukačevo and three Basilians — were sent to the college, and they all came between the two World Wars.

Two of the students became bishops of the Kyivan rite - Dudaš and Romža.

8. GRAZ COLLEGE (Graz)

1577-1741

The Jesuits went to Graz in 1571. They founded their college there in 1575, the convict in 1576, and the university in 1586. The Pontifical College of Graz was founded by Pope Gregory XIII in 1577, and joined to the Jesuit convict. In 1626, Cardinal Carafa, the Nuncio of Vienna (1621-1628), mentioned in a letter to the Propaganda Fide that there would be no difficulty in getting places for students from the Metropolitanate of Kyiv, once the consent of the emperor had been obtained. Nuncio Carafa talked to the emperor and got his consent for two places. Unfortunately, these places were not permanent, and could be renewed only once. Two students were sent by Metropolitan Rutskyi by the end of December of 1626, but there is no evidence that they were ever replaced.

9. GREEK COLLEGE (Gr)

Rome, 1576 —

The Pontifical Greek College in Rome opened on November 3, 1576 and was officially approved on January 13, 1577 by Pope Gregory XIII, and was under the protection of Cardinal Santori, its chief promoter. Classes were begun on November 3 of the same year, and were attended by six students. The Jesuits took over the direction of the college from 1591 until 1604, and again from 1622 until 1773, and organized it on the Jesuit pattern. In 1803 the college was closed on account of the Napoleonic Wars and, although there was an attempt to reopen in 1835, it did not officially reopen until 1845. At the reopening, six of the eight students were from Ukrainian territories, and the college became commonly known as Greek Ruthenian. In 1897, the Ruthenians moved to their own newly founded college at Piazza Madonna dei Monti, 3.

The early records of the college are missing, but it seems that the first two students of Byzantine Kyivan rite to have studied there were the older son of Kosmas Mamonyč, the Consul of Vilno, and Petro Potij, the son of Bishop Ipatij Potji who was a widower. Shortly after, two more students from the Metropolitanate of Kyiv came — Jakym Illja Morochovskyj and Ivan Veljamyn Rutskyj, both of whom later became bishops and figures of considerable importance in the Kyivan Church.

Through the efforts of Metropolitan Rutskyj (1613-1637), regular places for six students were assigned to the Metropolitanate of Kyiv, four having been assigned by Pope Paul V and another two by the Propaganda Fide. In actual practice, these places were not filled to capacity. The rectors, for one reason or another, as a rule could find places for only three. The students during the 17th and 18th centuries were predominantly Basilians, but after the reopening of the college in 1845, they were all diocesan seminarians. After World War I, there were some Ukrainian and Bielorussian students to attend the college, but they were all of Byzantine Muscovite rite, and had been directed to the college by the Pontifical Commission "pro Exarchatu Russiarum", which extended its jurisdiction over all Muscovite rite territories and diaspora.

The students of the Greek College played an outstanding role in the life of the Kyivan rite Church. Eight of the sixteen Kyivan Catholic Metropolitans during the 17th and 18th centuries were its alumni — Kolenda, Korsak, Rostockyj, Rutskyj, Seljava, Smohoževskyj, Zalenskyj and Žochovskyj. During the 19th century, another alumnus became the Metropolitan of Halyč — Sylvester Cardinal Sembratovskyč. Besides the nine metropolitans, the alumni also included 23 other bishops — Josaphat, Bastašyč, Bilozor, De Camillis, Fylypovych, Godebskyj, Horbackyj, Hutorovyč, Krevza, Kvasninskyj, Lebeckyj, Lodzjata, Losovskyj, Malachovskyj, Malejevskyj, Mlodovskyj, Morochovskyj, Oranskyj, Palkovskyj, Počapovskyj, Sokolinskyj, Šypilo, Tryzna and Važinskyj. There were also 11 Protoarchimandrites of the Basilian Order — Kolenda, Korsak, Kušelyč, Lebeckyj, Martyškevyč, Ohurcevyč, Ohylevyč, Rutskyj, Seljava, Važinskyj and Vilčinskyj. A former student important to the Kyivan rite Church was the noted liturgist Father Isydom Dolnyckyj (1830-1924).

10. HIRSCHBERG-CULEMBORG SEMINARY (Hirsch) 1946-1950

The Seminary of Hirschberg, 50 kilometers south of Munich, was opened on February 8, 1946. The building, which had been the property of the family of the counts of Hirschberg, had been confiscated by Hitler, and after the liberation Mussolini had lived there and later the Hungarian Regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy. After World War II, it was taken over by the American army, who turned it over to UNRRA (United Nations Refugee Relief Association), an organization which took care of displaced persons. UNRRA permitted the seminary to be opened in the building, which was to serve as a displaced persons camp, since nearly all of the students were displaced persons, supported by UNRRA. The main promoter of the foundation, and later its patron and protector, was Mykola Vojakovskyj, the Delegated Apostolic Visitator with the rights of Apostolic Administrator for Ukrainian Catholics in Germany.

On December 4, 1946, the building was taken away by UNRRA and turned over to the Bavarian government. The seminary was transferred to Mittenwald camp, but courses could hardly function there, since several thousand displaced persons were in the camp. Through the efforts of Father Vojakovskyj, the former building was rented from the Bavarian government for 24,000 German marks annually. The students returned to Hirschberg on February 1, 1947, and remained there until April 24, 1948, when the seminary was transferred to Culemborg on Rhine, near Utrecht, Holland. The seminary was located in part of an Augustinian monastery, which the monks had allowed for its use. It was supported by the Apostolate for the Union of Churches, which had been founded in 1927 at the suggestion of Metropolitan Andrij Šeptyckyj, who had visited Holland in 1921.

In Hirschberg from 1946 to 1948, all major decisions, including the receiving and dismissal of students, depended on the rector and on the Apostolic Visitator Vojakovskyj, who resided in Munich. From 1948 to 1950 in Culemborg, major decisions were made by the rector and the Apostolic Visitator for Western Europe, Bishop Ivan Bučko, who resided in Rome.

There was only one rector for the entire time of the existence of the seminary, Father Vasyl Laba. The vice-rectors were Father Mychajlo Levenec (February to July 1946), and Father Oleksander Malynovskiy (July 1946 to June 1950). In Hirschberg the spiritual fathers were Father Volodymyr Malančuk, a Redemptorist, and then Father Zachar Zolotyj, a secular priest from Stanyslaviv. In Culemborg Father Ljudvyk Minja, a Redemptorist, was spiritual father.

The studies lasted for five years, with at least five hours of class daily, taught in the Ukrainian language. Most of the professors were priests, but a few were laymen. A library was begun which in time came to include over 2000 volumes. The students had two organizations — the Society of Ukrainian Students of Theology, which included all the students, and was organized on March 31, 1946, and the Brotherhood of the Visitation of the Blessed Virgin Mary in the Temple, strictly of a religious nature, with voluntary membership, which had been organized at the Seminary of Lviv earlier by Father Isydom Dolnyckyj. In Hirschberg, the students were in continuous contact with the Ukrainian communities in the displaced persons camps in Germany. In Culemborg, they were isolated from the Ukrainian community since there were not many Ukrainians in Holland. They were in constant contact with the Dutch, however, being asked to sing Byzantine rite Divine Liturgies, to give concerts of Ukrainian songs, and to provide information about the Church in Ukraine.

Some of the students coming to the seminary in Hirschberg were those who had studied in Ukrainian seminaries in their native land before the war, some of whom had continued their studies in German seminaries during the war until Hirschberg was opened. Pavlo Babjak, Ljubomyr Mudryj, Roman Muzyčka and Vasyl Švec had attended the Seminary in Bamberg, and others came from Paderborn and Innsbruck. The remainder of the students were beginning students, who were enrolled from the displaced persons camps. It is very difficult to determine the number of students in the first two semesters, since various lists include different names, and the lists are for the most part undated. Altogether there are 75 names for the first year, but some may have been there for only the first or second semester. On the list dated June 6, 1946, there are 68 names, but the list of room assignments includes only 62 names. On the sugar list of November 28, 1947 there are 52 students, and the same number is on the cigarette list of December 18, 1947. On the cigarette list of March 9, 1948 there are 53 students.

According to the list of students, only 42 of the students went to Culemborg when the seminary was transferred there on April 24, 1948. During the 6th semester, two more former Hirschberg students (Burjak and Hošulak) came, bringing the number up to 44 by the close of the year 1947/48. During 1948/49, four new students came, increasing the enrollment to 48, and at the end of the year 24 left (17 finished their studies, 6 left with studies incomplete, and one transferred to the seminary of Luxembourg). Six new students joined the 24 remaining ones in 1949/50, but four (Koc, Kostko, Labunka and VanHarten) left during the year, so that by the close of 1949/50, when the seminary was closed, there were 26 students. The seminary was closed because there was no need for it any more, since most of the displaced persons had emigrated overseas. The few students who were left were able to complete their studies in other seminaries.

Most of the students who became priests were not ordained in Culemborg, but in the various dioceses into which they had been received. Two of the alumni were promoted to the dignity of the hierarchy — Metropolitan Sulyk of Philadelphia, and Archbishop Marusyn, the Apostolic Visitator for the Byzantine Kyivan rite in Western Europe and presently Secretary of the Sacred Congregation for the Oriental Churches.

11. INNSBRUCK SEMINARY (Inns)

The College of Innsbruck was founded in 1562 by St. Canisius, and it began to be called and is known as the Canisianum. St. Canisius had in 1559 founded a college in Munich, and later colleges in Dillingen in 1563 and in Wurzburg in 1567. The College of Innsbruck was elevated to a university in 1677 by Vienna and by Rome. In 1773, when the Jesuits were suppressed, it was reduced to a lyceum, and in 1826, the university was reestablished, although without theology. In 1832, the Jesuits returned to teach and in 1856, the teaching of theology was again established, and the Seminary of Canisianum by the University of Innsbruck was formed. In 1940 the seminary was closed, and it did not reopen until 1945.

Ukrainian students began to attend the seminary in 1899. Of the alumni, nine were promoted to the Kyivan rite Catholic hierarchy — Bocjan, Bohačevskyj, Budka, Ljatyševskyj, Ljubačivskj, Segedi, Šimrak, Slipij and Stach, and one of these became a cardinal — Slipij. Two of the alumni became Orthodox bishops — Žuk and Melnyk.

12. INSTITUTUM ECCLESIASTICUM HUNGARICUM (InstEH)

Rome, 1940 —

The Pontificium Institutum Ecclesiasticum Hungaricum in Urbe was officially opened in 1940. The building was purchased jointly by the Hungarian Academy of Sciences and the Hungarian bishops. The bishops obtained one floor, and used it for an institute to house student priests who wished to continue their studies in Rome. At first supported by the Hungarian bishops, after World War II it began to be supported by the Holy See. It is located near the Piazza di Fiori on Via Giulia, 1. Several priests from Hajdudorog, Miskolc and Prjašiv, who were Hungarian citizens, lived there during their studies in Rome.

One of the students later became a bishop — Keresztes.

13. INSTITUTUM MARIAE IMMACULATAE (InstMI)
Rome, 1902 —

The Institute was founded on Via del Mascherone, 55, in 1902, for priests who wished to continue their studies in Rome. There was place for as many as 50 students. Its direction was entrusted to the Congregation of St. Mary Immaculate, a group founded during the last century to assist priests and to encourage vocations to the priesthood. Since St. Josafat was overcrowded between the two World Wars, and the Damascenum did not yet exist, several Ukrainian priests who were studying in Rome lived at the Institute during that period.

14. LVIV SEMINARY (Lviv)
1709-1784

The Pontifical Ruthenian Seminary of Lviv was begun in 1709 through the efforts of the Theatine Fathers of Lviv, especially of Father Stephen Trombetti, rector of the Pontifical Armenian Seminary of Lviv (1706-1723).

In 1709, with the consent of the Propaganda Fide, Father Trombetti accepted two Ukrainian students from the eparchy of Lviv, and in 1711, he received two from the eparchy of Luck and one from Lviv. The number of Ukrainians grew from five in 1711 to seven in 1718. After lengthy discussions pro and con, the two seminaries, Ruthenian and Armenian, were put together by the Propaganda Fide under the same rector, with the same professors, and in the same building, although in separate quarters. The year 1720 was a fortunate one for the Ruthenian seminary. In that year, Rome assigned the annual sum of 210 scudi for 6 students, or 35 scudi for each student. Through the efforts of Nuncio Grimaldi at the Synod of Zamostja that year, the bishop of the eparchy of Lviv promised to fund four permanent places. The bishop of Peremyšl promised one place in addition to the four already established by his predecessor, Bishop Vynnyckyj, and the bishop of Luck promised three places. With the money received from the Ukrainian bishops, the village of Dubljany was bought, and the income from the village destined for the support of the students. Students from the Ukrainian part of the archeparchy of Kyiv were educated on the money sent from Rome, although irregularly. The seminary, exclusively for the secular clergy, was the only seminary for Halyčyna, Volyn and the Ukrainian part of the archeparchy of Kyiv, a territory with over 6000 parishes. Although it was inadequate for an area this size, it was at least something, promising a better future for the secular clergy. Classes were conducted in Latin and the course of studies was rigorous. The secular clergy were married, with few exceptions, and usually were sent to rural parishes.

In 1784, Emperor Joseph II founded a general seminary in Lviv for all the clergy, and the students from the Pontifical Seminary of Lviv were transferred there and the Pontifical Seminary was closed. The college building and Dubljany were confiscated. The building, as property of the Holy See, was never regained. Finally in 1845, the Austrian government agreed to use the interest from the sale of the village of Dubljany to support the education of Ukrainian students in Rome. This helped reopen the Greek College, where Ukrainian students made up the majority of the student body which until 1897 was commonly known as the Greek Ruthenian College. In 1897, when the Ruthenian College in Piazza Madonna dei Monti was opened, and the Ukrainian students moved there, the interest from the sale of Dubljany was the base of their support.

Two of the alumni were raised to the hierarchy of the Kyivan Church — Levynskyj and Rudnyckyj.

15/16. NORTH AMERICAN COLLEGES 1 and 2 (NAm1, NAm2)
Rome, 1859 —

The Pontifical North American College was opened on December 8, 1859 with 12 students. Its first location was the old monastery of the Umiltà, which had been donated for that purpose by Pope Pius IX. The American bishops bought new property on the Janiculum in 1926, and in 1933 the graduate department for student priests was established at the Casa San Giovanni there. After having been closed during the war years 1940 to 1946, the college reopened at both locations as before, with the college itself on the via dell'Umiltà, and the graduate department on the Janiculum. Because of the need for larger facilities for the ever increasing student body, a new building was erected on the Janiculum, and on October 14, 1953, Pope Pius XII blessed the new college which had been transferred to that location, the graduate department moving to the original historical site on Via dell'Umiltà under the name of Casa Santa Maria dell'Umiltà. There are therefore two North American Colleges included in this present study — the North American College on the Janiculum (1), and the Casa Santa Maria dell'Umiltà for graduate studies (2). Since 1970, the Casa Santa Maria has also been the site for the recently inaugurated Institute for Continuing Theological Education (ICTE).

Students of Byzantine Kyivan rite began attending the college only after World War II, and all, except one from Philadelphia, have been from the Byzantine Ruthenian Metropolitan Province of Pittsburgh.

Altogether there have been 12 students from 1967 until now at the North American College 1, and 21 students from 1954 until now at the North American College 2.

17. OLOMOUC COLLEGE (OI)
1578-1741

The Academy of Olomouc was founded by the Jesuits in 1567, and the Pontifical College of Olomouc was founded in 1578 by Pope Gregory XIII. The main promoter of the foundation of the Pontifical College was Father Antonio Possevino, the former secretary general of the Jesuits. The college was to serve the same provinces as the college of Braunsberg — "Svezia, Gothia, Vandalia, Norvegia, Dacia, Pomerania, Prussia, Livonia, Moscovia, Russia seu Lithuania, et Hungaria". There was no prescribed number of students to be received from each province or nation, and the rector had considerable freedom in the selection of students. To a certain degree, it is surprising that in the early period up until 1604, it was not Braunsberg, Prague or Vilno, but Olomouc which had the greatest number of students' names hinting at Ukrainian or Bielorussian origin. It is also rather astonishing to note the conspicuous absence of the alumni in the preparation for the Union of Berestja, at the Synod of Berestja, and later in activities in support of the Union. After 1604 no more Kyivan rite students were accepted for many years.

In spite of the fact that "Russia seu Lithuania" was mentioned in the bull of foundation in 1578, and that Pope Paul V had promised Metropolitan Rutskyj two places in 1615, it was fifteen years after the pope's promise before the rectors of Olomouc again began to accept students of Kyivan rite, and another sixty years before they stopped making opposition to their acceptance. During the 163 years from 1578 to 1741, the total number of students from the Metropolitanate of Kyiv was only 66. Of these, only 42 worked later for the metropolitan, and the rest were neither sent by the metropolitan nor worked for him later. It makes one wonder for whom the latter mentioned Ruthenians were educated.

The seminary was closed in 1741, after a visitation from Rome.

Five of the alumni of the seminary later became bishops — Bulhak, Furs, Oranskyj, Suša and Zalenskyj.

18. PRAGUE COLLEGE (Pr)
1560-1741

In Prague, there were two pontifical colleges; St. Wenceslaus (Domus pauperum) was founded in 1559, and St. Bartholomew for the nobility was founded in 1560. The University of Prague was founded in 1348 and the Academy of Prague was founded in 1562. The Byzantine Kyivan rite students attended the College of St. Bartholomew.

Although Prague is not a great distance from Kyiv, in the 67 years from the foundation of the college until 1627, only five students from the Kyivan Metropolitanate can be counted as having studied there. Three of them are mentioned by name in the records, and two others, Metropolitans Rutskyj and Korsak, are mentioned in other sources. Pope Paul V had promised two places in 1615, but these could be obtained only from time to time with great difficulty from the rectors of Prague, in spite of the intervention of the Propaganda Fide. In one case, students who had been sent by the metropolitan made the long trip to the college, only to be refused admittance to the presence of the rector, being turned away at the door. Only 14 students of Kyivan rite studied in Prague during the 125 years from 1616 to 1741, when the college was closed. The rectors gave the excuse that Kyiv was not mentioned in the bull of erection of the college, although some of the mentioned provinces, like Lusazia and Hassia, were fictitious and existed only on paper, so that there should have been empty places. Of the students who studied in Prague, four were promoted to the hierarchy of the Kyivan Church — Rutskyj, Korsak, Chmeljovskyj and Fylypovych (not consecrated).

19. PROPAGANDA FIDE COLLEGE (PF) Rome, 1627 —

The Pontifical Urbanian College of the Propaganda Fide was founded in 1627 by Pope Urban VIII (1623-1644), thanks to the Spanish priest, Mons. Giovanni Battista Vives, who bought the palazzo of Cardinal Ferratini in Piazza di Spagna and donated it for that purpose, besides making a foundation for ten students. An additional foundation for twelve students was made by Antonio Cardinal Barberini of St. Onofrio, the brother of the pope. The college was closed between the years 1798 and 1803, and again from 1809 until 1817. In 1928, a new building was erected on the Janiculum and the college was transferred there.

The rectors were Theatines until 1646, and the Jesuits directed the college from 1836 until 1848. All the rest of the time, it was directed by the secular clergy. From the beginning, the college had its own professors and its own school. The school was made a Pontifical Athenaeum in time, and in 1962 became the Pontifical Urbanian University.

Kyivan rite students began to attend the college in the mid 17th century, and the last Kyivan student to attend was in the mid 19th century.

There were ten of the students of the College of the Propaganda Fide who were later promoted to the Kyivan rite hierarchy — Božičkovič, Josafat Bulhak, Jurij Bulhak, Kyška, Lisanskyj, Rylo, Atanasij Šeptyckyj, Stanyč, Stebnovskiy and Žolkevskyj. There were five students who were protoarchimandrites of the Basilian Order — Falkovskyj, Kyška, Lisovskyj, Polatylo and Procevyč.

20. RUSSICUM (Russ)
Rome, 1929 —

The Pontificium Collegium Russicum is situated on Via Carlo Cattaneo, 2, near the Basilica of St. Mary Major in Rome. The first stone was laid on February 11, 1928, and the college was officially opened on August 15, 1929. The direction was entrusted to Jesuits of Byzantine Muscovite rite. The purpose of the college was to educate priests of Byzantine Muscovite rite for Russia, and for Ukrainian and Bielorussian territories, in which the Kyivan rite had been replaced with the Muscovite rite when in 1686 the Kyivan Orthodox Church changed from union with Constantinople to union with Moscow. The Muscovite rite is also kept in Ukrainian and Bielorussian territories in which the Kyivan Roman Uniate Church was suppressed between 1795 and 1875. The students at the Russicum were prepared, not only for work among the Russians, but also for work among the Ukrainians and Bielorussians mentioned above, and among those of Muscovite rite in diaspora.

To the Russicum went several students from western Ukraine, especially Studites preparing themselves for missions among Ukrainians of the Muscovite rite in Volyn, Polissja and Pidlašša, which between the two World Wars were under Polish domination. For a while after World War II, some students came from the Pittsburgh Ruthenian Metropolitanate. The students at the Russicum were and are composed not only of Russians, but mostly of different nationalities of Latin rite who were willing to change rites or become biritual in order to work among the Russians.

One of the alumni became a bishop of Kyivan rite - Romža.

21. ST. ANDREW COLLEGE (SAnd)
Munich, 1930-1940

St. Andrew College in Munich began in 1930 with a few students, but was not officially opened until 1932. The original idea for the college came from Metropolitan Andrij Šeptyckyj, of Lviv, and the Society of Catholic Union, with headquarters in Switzerland, was willing to support it from their collections in Germany. The one who realized the idea was Cardinal Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich. He wrote to Pope Pius XI for permission to open a college in Munich to educate priests for missions among the Russians. The pope asked for the opinion of the president of Catholic Union, Bishop Besson of Lausanne, Geneva and Freiburg, and Bishop d'Herbigny, the president of the Pontifical Commission for Russia. Bishop Besson was in favor of the idea, but Bishop d'Herbigny was reluctant with his approval, saying that it was not clear what Cardinal Faulhaber intended to do for the missions, or what control the Pontifical Commission for Russia would have over the college.

The Sacred Oriental Congregation decided to grant permission for the foundation of the college for the education of oriental native clergy and for the continuation of studies for priests. The seminaries of Rome did not have room for these students, and besides, the funds for support were to be collected in Germany and, as Cardinal Faulhaber wrote, the Germans would be more inclined to donate if the students were to be educated in Germany.

In the beginning, the Sacred Congregation wanted to have educated only students of oriental rite origin, but later, at the insistence of Cardinal Faulhaber, they permitted the college to accept students of Latin rite who would be willing to work for Russia, on the condition that the Latin rite students would not exceed one third of the students accepted. The students were to be ordained only after having been incardinated by some bishop into his diocese. The records show that quite a few were incardinated by Metropolitan Andrij Šeptyckyj into the diocese of Lviv. The students were obliged to go wherever they were sent by the Oriental Congregation for missionary work.

At first, the college was located at Wittelsbachplatz 2-11 where it occupied one floor of the building. In the October of 1936, it moved to its own house on Mandlstrasse, 10. The number of students was relatively small. In 1934/36, there were thirteen, eight of eastern rite and five Germans of Latin rite. In 1936/37, there were altogether eleven students. For courses the students went to Munich University. The rector for the whole period of the existence of the college was Christopher Bauer. Reports concerning the students were sent to the Oriental Congregation by the rector, and economical reports were sent to the Oriental Congregation by the Catholic Union, who supported the college. The rector celebrated daily Mass in the Latin rite, and the students celebrated in their own rites. Sunday Mass alternated rite — one Sunday it was celebrated in the Greek rite, one Sunday in the Muscovite rite, and one Sunday in the Kyivan rite.

On account of the war, the college was closed in the February of 1940. The few students still present were transferred to Eichstatt to finish the academic year. After the war, the college was not reopened.

One of the alumni became a Kyivan rite bishop - Boreckyj.

22. ST. HIERONYMUS COLLEGE (SHier)

Rome, 1901 —

The beginning of the Croatian College of St. Hieronymus goes back to a breve of Pope Nicholas V (1447-1455) dated April 21, 1453, in which he gave permission to the Croatian community of Rome (known as Illirici) to construct a hospice and hospital, donating them the land on which to build and the adjoining little church of San Marino. They remodelled the little church and it was consecrated under the name of St. Hieronymus. Pope Pius V (1566-1572) in 1566 made it a Cardinal's titular Church. Pope Sixtus V (1585-1590), whose family was originally from Illyria, ordered the church destroyed and in its place was built a larger St. Hieronymus Church which is still in existence. In 1589, the pope established for the church a chapter with six canons and four beneficiaries. Since the name Illirici was not clear, the Roman Rota decided in 1656 that Illyria included Dalmatia, Croatia, Slavonia, Bosnia, Herzegovina and Istria. Pope Pius VI (1775-1799) in 1790 suppressed the hospital and founded in its place the Collegium Croaticum Sancti Hieronymi, but this ceased to exist after the occupation of Rome by French troops. At the insistence of Bishop Joseph George Strossmayer of Djakovo the college was reopened in 1864 for priests to continue their studies, but with the occupation of Rome by the royal Italian troops, it was closed in 1871. In 1885 it was reopened, only to close again in 1889. In 1901, Pope Leo XIII (1878-1903) suppressed the chapter and reopened the college under the name Collegium Hieronymianum pro Croatica gente, for students of those dioceses which had formerly had the right to use the hospice and hospital. In 1902, on account of political difficulties, the name became Collegium Sancti Hieronymi Illiricorum. It began functioning regularly in 1911, but was closed between the years 1915 and 1924. In 1937/39 the present building was constructed, replacing the old one.

The students to be received at the college were taken from the 17 dioceses mentioned in the bull of erection — Zagreb, Djakovo, Senj, Križevci, Zadar (Zara), Split (Spoleto), Sibenik, Hvar (Lesina), Dubrovnik (Ragusa), Kotor (Cattara), Krk (Veglia), Trst and Kopar (Trieste and Capodistria), Porec-Pulj (Parenzo-Pola), Sarajevo, Banjaluka, Mostar and Bar (Antivari). The rector was nominated by the pope, whereas the vice-rector and spiritual father were nominated by the cardinal protector on the proposition of the rector. The cardinal protector received and dismissed students, after first hearing the opinion of the rector.

Since the Byzantine rite eparchy of Križevci, created in 1777, was in Illyria, it was mentioned among the 17 dioceses the college was to serve. Since 1901, eight Croatian and Ukrainian priests from the diocese of Križevci have studied there. Two of these became bishops — Segedi and Herbut.

23. ST. JOSAFAT COLLEGE (SJOS)

Rome, 1897 —

Byzantine Kyivan rite students began to come to study in Rome in the forth quarter of the 16th century. They came to the Pontifical Greek College, which had been opened on November 3, 1576 and officially approved by Pope Gregory XIII on January 13, 1577. By the middle of the 17th century, they began coming also to the Pontifical College of the Propaganda Fide. There was the intention to found a Ruthenian College in Rome, and even in 1639, the Church of Sts. Sergius and Bacchus, with a little adjoining building at Piazza Madonna dei Monti, 3, was donated by Pope Urban VIII (1623-1644), although the idea was not realized at that time. It was not until 1897, after the building by the church was rebuilt and enlarged with the help of Pope Leo XIII and Emperor Franz Joseph I of Austria, that the Ruthenian College was opened and Ruthenian students from the Greek College were transferred there.

The college was closed on May 9, 1915 on account of World War I, and did not reopen until the March of 1921. In 1932, the college was transferred from Piazza Madonna dei Monti to the new building on the Janiculum, and its name changed from Ruthenian College to the College of St. Josafat. After World War II, when the diocese of Pittsburgh stopped sending students to St. Josafat, the name was modified to St. Josafat Ukrainian Seminary.

From 1897 until World War I, students from only three eparchies — Lviv, Peremyšl and Stanislaviv — and Basilians from Halyčyna came to the Ruthenian College. After World War I, students came also from Mukačevo, Prjašiv, Maramures, Križevci, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Winnipeg and Brazil, as well as Basilians from Zakarpattja. After World War II, students stopped coming from the dioceses under communist control, and Pittsburgh stopped sending students. Pittsburgh, which was split into four eparchies and formed the Byzantine Ruthenian Metropolitan Province of Pittsburgh, began sending its students to the Russicum, and then to the two North American Colleges, and so far have sent two students to the St. Thomas Convict. Since World War II, students from the 10 eparchies (Argentina, Brazil, Chicago, Edmonton, New Westminster, Philadelphia, Saskatoon, Stamford, Toronto and Winnipeg) and the 4 exarchates (Australia, France, Germany and Great Britain) of the Ukrainian diaspora, the eparchy of Prjašiv, the Ukrainian and Croatian eparchy of Križevci, and the Slovak eparchy of Sts. Cyril and Methodius in Canada, have the right to attend the college.

Between 1897 and 1904, the college was under the direction of the Jesuits, and since 1904 it has been directed by the Basilians. The rectors have been Robert Isolani (1897-1899), Evhen Polidori (1899-1904), Arsenij Lozynskyj (1904-1905), Adrijan Davyda (1905-1908), Ilarij Lazor Berezovskyi (1908-1915, 1921-1925) Dionysij Holoveckyj (1925-1934), Josafat Labaj (1935-1948), Josyf Zajačkivskyj (1948-1952 +), Mykola Kohut (1952-1953), Josyf Martynec (1953-1955), Irynej Nazarko (1955-1966 +), Jeronim Chymij (1966-1974), and Sofron Mudryj (1974-). The vice-rectors have been Josafat Markevych (1904-1905), Josafat Labaj (1933-1934), Mychajlo Vavryk (1934-1948), Atanasij Velykyj (1948-1953, 1955-1960), Meletij Vojnar (1953-1954), Serhij Fedynjak (1954-1955), Sofron Mudryj (1960-1974), Damjan Ferenc (1974-1979) and Dorotej Krefer (1979-1983).

The students went to the Urbanianum for courses from 1897 until 1928, and have gone there from 1932 until now. Between 1928 and 1932, they attended the Angelicum because it was closer after the Propaganda Fide College (Urbanianum) moved to the Janiculum. When the Ruthenian College also moved to the Janiculum, the students again enrolled at the Urbanianum. After World War II, some of the students went to the Gregorianum and to the Angelicum for philosophy and theology. For special studies several students went to the Alfonsonianum, Antonianum, Theresianum, Gregorianum, PIOS and Lateranum.

Twelve of the students have become bishops. Four were before World War II -Bučko, Čarneckyj, Kocylovskyj, and Slipyj, and eight after the war - Bukatko, Hornjak, Kocisko, Kornyljak, Martynec, Marusyn, Praško and Šmondjuk.

24. ST. SOFIJA SEMINARY (SSof)

Rome, 1968 —

St. Sofija Seminary was founded in 1968 on Via Boccea, 478, in Rome by His Beatitude Josyf Cardinal Slipyj, as the continuation of the Seminary of Lviv, which in 1944 had ceased to exist when Lviv was occupied by Soviet troops. The students come from the different eparchies and exarchates of the Ukrainian diaspora. They study for Lviv, and are ordained for the archeparchy of Lviv, but after ordination are sent for temporary work in the Ukrainian diaspora. They have the obligation to go to Lviv whenever they are sent there. Between 1968 and 1973, Studites were among the seminarians at St. Sofija.

The seminarians study at various Roman universities and at the Ukrainian Catholic University of St. Clement in Rome. Cardinal Slipyj was the first rector (1968-1975), until in 1975 he appointed Mitrat Ivan Choma, who is the present rector.

25. ST. THOMAS CONVICT (SThom)

Rome, 1948 —

The Convictus ecclesiasticus internationalis S. Thomae Aquinatis was opened after World War II on Via degli Ibernesi, 20, close to the Angelicum. It is intended for students who wish to study at the Angelicum, and have not their own national or ritual seminary. So far, only two students of Byzantine Kyivan rite have lived there, and they were both from the Byzantine Ruthenian Metropolitan Province of Pittsburgh.

26. TYRNAVA ADALBERTINE COLLEGE (Tyrn)

When the Turks occupied Budapest, Esztergom and most of Hungary, the Archbishop of Esztergom and Primate of Hungary in 1543 moved with his chapter to Tyrnava in the northwestern part of the Hungarian kingdom, which never fell under Turkish domination. Since that time, for over two hundred years, Tyrnava was the religious and cultural center of free Hungary. In Tyrnava, the archdiocesan seminary was opened in 1556, the Adalbertine College for poor students in 1619, the Pázmány Academy in 1635, and the central seminary in 1648. In 1769 the academy was raised to the rank of university under the name of Pázmány University.

Tyrnava was for a while of importance to Ruthenians and Romanians of Greek rite in Hungary. The first printing house with Cyrillic alphabet was founded there, and in 1698 was printed the first book in the Cyrillic alphabet, Katechyzys dla nauky uhro-ruskim ljudem zložennyj. In 1699 was published Bukvar jazyka Slavenska and in 1727 Kratkoe prypadkov moralnych yly pravnych sobranie. In 1726 the Romanian catechism was printed, in Cyrillic, since the Romanian people considered that to print it in the Latin alphabet would be a latinization. In 1726 the Cyrillic typesetting characters were transferred to Cluj (Gherla).

After the Union of Užhorod in 1646, students from the diocese of Mukačovo attended the academy in Tyrnava, but it is hard to know how many or who went. For the 17th and 18th centuries, records are lacking, except for a listing of students conserved in the diocesan archives of Pécs — Nomina et cognomina alumnorum fundationis Janianae per singulos annos a 1722-1760. The Janian foundation seems to have been the main source of support for students from the diocese of Mukačovo, which at that time included territories from which were later created the dioceses of Mukačovo, Prjašiv and Hajdudorog, and the administration of Miskolc. The Janian foundation was set up by the Archbishop of Esztergom, Cardinal Leopold Kollonich, with 18,000 florins obtained from Emperor Leopold, which had originally belonged to a certain Father Franciscus Giani, an Italian priest. Father Giani had obtained some benefices in Hungary, and in 1703 he went to Vienna to collect 18,000 florins owed him by some Viennese people. He died suddenly without having made a will, and the emperor took the money for the state. At the insistence of Cardinal Kollonich, he ceded it for a pious foundation, and the cardinal, after adding to the sum 2,000 florins of his own, set up the Janiana-Leopoldiana foundation in the Adalbertine College for students of the Greek rite. This arrangement was contested by Father Ferdinand Giani, the nephew of the deceased, but through the mediation of Bishop Nesselrode of Pecs a compromise was reached. Bishop Nesselrode added 6,000 florins to the sum, bringing it to 26,000. The coat-of-arms of the Giani family was placed over the entrance of the Adalbertine College, and Father Giani had the right to propose the students for the foundation for his lifetime. The Bishop of Pecs obtained twelve places from the foundation and whatever was left from the interest was to go for the support of Greek rite students.

Bishop de Camillis of Mukačevo obtained the promise of three places from the foundation in 1704, and historians often refer to those three places, but it seems that for the most part they existed only on paper. Before the settlement of the funds, which did not take place until 1714, no students could have filled the places. After 1714, the available support left over for the Greek rite students would have been negligible after twelve places had been taken by the Bishop of Pecs, since 26,000 florins was not a big foundation. In fact, the above mentioned list for 1722-1760 includes only a few names indicating Greek rite students.

The Adalbertine College was under the direction of the Jesuits. After their suppression in 1773, the funds from the Janian foundation purportedly were assigned by Vienna for the support of students from the recently officially erected diocese of Mukačevo. It seems probable that part of the money went for students in Budapest, and part remained for students in Tyrnava. In Budapest there were Greek rite seminarians from Mukačevo and Prjašiv until World War II. That there were Greek rite students in Tyrnava later than 1773 is obvious from the fact that in 1811 the emperor ordered some of them to be transferred to Vienna. Besides, Ruthenian students were in Tyrnava between 1814 and 1848, and their number was considerable. In 1814 there were twenty students from Mukačevo and two Basilians. Later until 1848 there were constantly about fifteen from Mukačevo and five from Prjašiv, but they stopped coming in 1848, possibly because the Greek Catholic Central Seminary in Vienna was opened, with places for both Mukačevo and Prjašiv.

From the Adalbertine College in Tyrnava were promoted to the Kyivan rite hierarchy Bačynskyj, Blažovskyj, Bradač, Manujil Olšavskyj, and Stepan Olšavskyj. About Bizancij, we know only that he studied in Tyrnava, and conclude that he studied at the Adalbertine College, since all the other bishops studied there.

27. VIENNA COLLEGE (VnPont)

The Pontifical College of Vienna was founded in 1574 by Pope Gregory XIII. In 1624, Pope Urban VIII limited the number of students to 20, indicating the provinces from which the students were to be taken and the number of students from each province — 7 from upper Austria, 7 from lower Austria, 2 from Valeria, 2 from Rezia and 2 from Berna. The bull of 1624 also mentions that, if no students were to be found in Valeria, Rezia and Berna, the places were to be filled with students from Austria.

Although Pope Paul V in 1615 had promised two places at the college to Metropolitan Rutskyj, there was no mention of this in the bull of 1624. Metropolitan Rutskyj and his successors continuously tried to obtain the two places, but their efforts and those of the Propaganda Fide, with few exceptions, remained fruitless. Austria was solidly Catholic and did not need missionaries, whereas Valeria, Rezia and Berna were solidly Protestant and did not send students. The rectors of the college were primarily interested only in Austria, however, and not in education of missionaries for eastern Europe. During the time of the existence of the college, a period of 167 years from 1574 until its closing in 1741, only nine students of Kyivan rite are mentioned as having been accepted.

Three of the students became members of the Kyivan rite hierarchy — Kolenda, Paškovskyj and Terleckyj.

28. VILNO COLLEGE (Vil)

The Pontifical Ruthenian College of Vilno was founded in 1582 by Pope Gregory XIII, on the initiative of Father Antonio Possevino, the former secretary general of the Jesuits, and the papal representative to treat of political matters with Sweden, Moscow and Poland. The college was supported directly from Rome for the whole time of its existence. It was under the direction of the Polish Jesuits working in Poland from 1582 until 1773, and under the Basilians from 1773 until its closing in 1798.

The College of Vilno was explicitly "pro Ruthenis et Muscovitis". Since "Rutheni" at that time meant the present Ukrainians and Bielorussians, and "Muscovitae" meant the present Russians, the college was intended for Ukrainians or Bielorussians. The "Moscovitae" were hindered from attending for political reasons, so in practice the students should have been all Ukrainians or Bielorussians, but for many years this was not the case. In fact, in 1615 Metropolitan Rutskyj had to ask Rome for a mere six places in the college, and was promised these by the pope. In spite of the pope's promise, the Jesuit provincial in 1625 replied to an inquiry by the Nuncio of Warsaw, stating to him that the "Rutheni uniti" had no right at all to be accepted in the College of Vilno. After incessant writing of the Kyivan hierarchy to Rome, the rectors of the college finally began to accept Ruthenians regularly, but only since 1686, and only four at a time.

After 171 years of existence of the college, Pope Benedict XIV made a special investigation, and in 1753 ordered the rector to send the Latin rite students away, and to take from then on only Ruthenian students. By order of the pope, there were assigned six places for Kyiv, and two places each for the eparchies of Cholm, Volodymyr, Pinsk, Polock and Smolensk, and four places for Basilians. In 1773, when the Jesuits were suppressed, and the direction of the college was entrusted to the Basilians, the number of places for Basilians was reduced to two, since the other two places were then assigned to Basilian teachers. Formerly the students had attended the Academy of Vilno, but the Basilians did their own teaching.

In 1798, the college had to be closed because funds were cut off on account of the Napoleonic Wars. Besides, the Russians had taken over Vilno, and had immediately begun to suppress the Kyivan rite Catholic Church.

The College of Vilno is a black spot in the history of the Union, clearly demonstrating the attitude of many Latin rite churchmen towards the Union of Berestja and towards the Kyivan rite Catholic Church. The Kyivan Church desperately needed educated clergy and educated Catholic leaders. In their absence, Constantinople and Moscow moved in, stirring the people to bloody wars which led to political and religious union with Moscow. By the negative educational policy, and second rate treatment of the Union, not Rome, not Warsaw, but Moscow profited.

Nine of the alumni became bishops of the Kyivan rite — Furs, Hlynkyj, Holovnja, Hrebnycyj, Hutorovyč, Krasovskyj, Oranskyj, Ovlučynskyj and Paškovskyj, and two became Basilian protoarchimandrites — Kušelyč and Zavadskyj.

29. WORLD WAR II THEOLOGICAL AND PHILOSOPHICAL STUDIES (WWII)*BAMBERG (WWIIBam)

During World War II, four Ukrainian seminarians, who had begun their theological studies in Halyčyna but had to leave on account of Soviet occupation, studied at the Seminary of Bamberg. In 1946, when the Seminary of Hirschberg was opened, they all transferred there.

PADERBORN (WWIIPad)

To Paderborn Seminary were admitted in the November of 1944 five students of Byzantine Kyivan rite — Čajka, Marusyn, Sereda, Spolitakevyc and Svyščuk. Another eight students were accepted by the Christmas of 1944. All of them had formerly studied in the Seminary of Lviv. During their studies in Paderborn, Sereda, one of the students, was killed by a bomb during an air raid on March 27, 1945, and Father Karpinskyj, another student, died in the hospital on March 30, 1946. Ten of the students went to Hirschberg after it opened in 1946.

One of the students became a bishop - Marusyn.

PRAGUE (WWIIPr)

During the occupation of Lviv, Peremyšl and Stanislaviv by the Soviet Union in 1939, the diocesan and Basilian seminaries were closed. The diocesan seminarians went directly to Prague and 24 of the Basilian seminarians went to Olomouc from October 17, 1939 to January 20, 1949 and then to Prague to continue their studies. They lived at a private German seminary opened in 1938, and went for courses to Karl's University, where German was the teaching language. In the autumn of 1942, the seminary was closed, and the students had to stay in different monasteries or in private houses in Prague. In 1943 the majority of the students were taken by the Germans to work, and the rest returned to Ukraine, which by then had passed from Russian to German hands. Some of the students returned later to continue their studies, but soon the Soviets moved in, and they had to escape from Prague to the west.

SALZBURG (WWIISalz)

Only one student of Byzantine Kyivan rite, Mykola Komar, finished his studies in Salzburg. He presented his doctoral thesis in Vienna, but defended it in Salzburg.

CHAPTER II

RELIGIOUS STUDENTS LIVING IN ROME AND ITALY IN THEIR OWN MONASTERIES

A. HISTORICAL SKETCHES

I. BASILIANS OF ST. JOSAFAT, GENERAL CURIA (BasGnC)

Rome, 1932 —

The Order of St. Basil the Great began sending their students to Rome in 1616. At first they attended the Greek College, and then, after the middle of the 17th century, also the College of the Propaganda Fide. In the 19th century, none of the Basilians studied in Rome, since for the most part the Basilians were suppressed at that time by the Russians. In 1882, the Basilians underwent the Reform of Dobromyl in Halyčyna, and in 1904 they began to send their students from Halyčyna to the Ruthenian College in Piazza Madonna dei Monti. They studied there until 1932, when the Ruthenian College moved to the Janiculum. The building of the Ruthenian College in Piazza Madonna dei Monti, with the Church of Sts. Sergius and Bacchus became the seat of the General Curia of the Basilians, which was established in 1931 in Dobromyl and transferred to Rome in 1932. From 1932 on, the Basilians studying in Rome lived in the house of the General Curia in Piazza Madonna dei Monti. In 1960, the General Curia bought a house on the Aventine at via S.Josafat, 8, and moved there with their students, and are there until now.

From 1904 until 1960 the Basilian students studied philosophy and theology at the Gregorianum. When they moved to the Aventine, they changed and went to the Anselmianum which was very close. For special studies they went to the Angelicum, the Antonianum, the Lateranum, PIOS and the Theresianum. In 1981, two Basilians began theology at the Urbanianum, and in 1982, 6 Basilians began philosophy at the Angelicum.

Two of the students of the General Curia residence became bishops — Kryvyj and Chymij.

2. BASILIANS OF GROTTAFERRATA
1936 —

The Basilians of Grottaferrata have residences also in southern Italy and Sicily. At one time in the middle ages they had 250 monasteries, and were of Byzantine Greek rite, and of Greek, Italo-Albanian and Italian nationalities. The first Kyivan rite candidates came to Grottaferrata between the two World Wars. There were 22 of them and they all came from the eparchy of Peremyšl. Of these, 19 were assigned to various occupations as needed in the monastery, and the other three were sent to study philosophy and theology at the Gregorianum.

3. FRANCISCANS
1945 —

The Franciscans of Byzantine Kyivan rite were begun in the U.S.A. in 1945 by Father Josafat Ananevyč. In 1947 they were organized as a Commissariate and later as the Custodia of St.Mary of the Angels, with headquarters in New Canaan, Connecticut. One of them studied at PIOS in 1960/63.

There are some Kyivan rite priests who entered the Franciscan Order in different countries and became either Latin rite or biritual. One of them, a biritualist of Byzantine Ukrainian origin, from Argentina, studied at PIOS in 1969/72.

4. REDEMPTORISTS
1913 —

The Redemptorists from Belgium received the permission to use the Byzantine Kyivan rite among the Ukrainians of Canada in 1906. Metropolitan Šptyckyj, visiting Canada in 1910, met them and asked the Redemptorist Superior General to open a Byzantine branch in his archeparchy.

In 1913, the first Redemptorist monastery was opened in Univ dependent upon Belgium. In 1918, another monastery in Zbojska was established. Both worked in the archeparchy of Lviv. In Canada in 1952, a vice province in Yorkton, dependent directly upon the Redemptorist General Curia, was formed of the Redemptorists of Kyivan rite. In 1960 it became a province, whereas in Halyčyna the Redemptorists were officially liquidated by the Russians in 1945. There was also created a Kyivan rite branch of the Redemptorists in Zakarpattja in 1921, dependent upon Prague.

Since the Redemptorists in Halyčyna and Canada were dependent upon Belgium, nearly all of them studied in Belgium. Those in Zakarpattja studied in Prague.

The first Kyivan rite Redemptorist to study in Rome came in 1936 — Father Hnatyšyn from Halyčyna. In 1937, Ivan Mastyljak from Zakarpattja and Clement Englert, a biritualist from the U.S.A. came to Rome. All three studied at PIOS. During World War II, two Redemptorists from Halyčyna studied at the Angelicum. After World War II, five came from Canada, and all studied at PIOS.

Two Redemptorists, included in this book, have become Kyivan rite bishops — Hermanjuk and Hryncýšyn.

5. SALESIANS

1932 —

The Salesians of Byzantine Kyivan rite began before World War II, when in 1932 ten Ukrainian boys from the diocese of Peremyšl came to the Salesian house in Ivrea, Italy. Six more came in 1937, then eight came in 1938 and eight in 1939, bringing their number to 32. All came as postulants and attended Salesian schools, and 23 were admitted to the novitiate. Of the 23 who entered the novitiate, 17 were ordained priests, 2 became brothers, and 4 left during their studies of philosophy or theology. They studied philosophy at Salesian seminaries in northern Italy, and theology in either Bolengo or Torino. Some of them earned their doctorates and pursued special studies in Torino and Rome.

Two of the Salesians received their doctoral degrees at PIOS, one received his doctorate in theology at the Urbanianum, and two received their doctorates in philosophy — one in Rome and one in Torino. One Salesian became a doctor of political sciences in Rome, and another a doctor of agriculture in Torino.

There have been 17 Salesians who, at one time or another, have taught at the Pontifical Ukrainian Minor Seminary, and 6 are teaching there at present.

One of the Salesians of Kyivan rite was promoted to the hierarchy — Andrij Sapeljak.

6. STUDITES

1900 —

The monks known under the name of Studites in the Byzantine Kyivan rite Church had their beginning in 1900 in Olesko by Zoločiv. In 1901, they were transferred by Metropolitan Šeptyckyj to Vulko by Lviv and in 1903 to Sknyliv. In 1906, Metropolitan Šeptyckyj gave them a typicon. After World War II, they went to work in the Ukrainian diaspora in Canada, Germany, Paraguay and the U.S.A.

The Studites came to Rome to study between the two World Wars. The intention of Metropolitan Šeptyckyj was to send Studites as missionaries among the Ukrainian and Bielorussian Orthodox, who through historical circumstances had accepted the Muscovite rite during the 18th and 19th centuries. He also intended to send them among the Russian Orthodox. To learn this rite and also the Russian religious culture, which is dominant among the Ukrainian and Bielorussian Orthodox, he sent the Studites to the Russicum. Other subjects they studied at the Gregorianum and PIOS.

After World War II, the Studites studying in Rome went to St. Josafat and then to St. Sofija. His Beatitude, Josyf Cardinal Slipyj, the successor of Metropolitan Šeptyckyj, after he was freed in 1963 after 18 years in Soviet concentration camps, in 1964 bought the Studites a monastery, the Stoudion, close to Rome on Lake Albano near Marino. The Studites therefore now have their own place, and their students go to Roman universities.

CHAPTER III DOCTORATES OF THEOLOGY AND PHILOSOPHY, AND SPECIAL STUDIES IN ROME AND LOUVAIN

A. HISTORICAL SKETCHES

1. ALFONSIANUM (Alfons) 1949 —

The Alfonsian Academy — Institutum superius theologiae moralis — was begun in 1949 as a private school for special studies in moral theology by the Redemptorists for the members of their own Congregation. On October 15, 1957, it was opened to the general public with an enrollment of twenty students, eight of whom were Redemptorists. There were fourteen professors, and eleven of them taught courses the first year.

The Academy awarded diplomas in moral theology to those who completed the two year course of study. In 1960, it was incorporated (not affiliated) into the theological faculty of the Lateran University, and after that time could confer the degree of doctor of moral theology after the completion of two years of specialized courses and the defense of a thesis.

By a decree of the Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education of May 20, 1968, changes were introduced for all Catholic schools which affected the Alfonsian Academy as well. From that time, in all Catholic schools, the license of theology had to be specialized, and certain universities could confer the license of moral theology. With the approval of the Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education, the regulation at the Alfonsian Academy was as follows: for those who already had the license of moral theology from another school, three years of study were required for the doctorate of moral theology; for those who did not have the license of moral theology two years were required to earn it, and an additional two years of study were required for the doctorate of moral theology.

2. ANGELICUM (Angel) 1577 —

The Dominicans have maintained centers of study in Rome from the earliest period of their existence. The oldest of these was the Convent of Santa Sabina on the Aventine. The College of St. Thomas was firmly established in Rome in 1577 as a school for theological studies with the right to confer degrees, but was for Dominicans only. Beginning in 1727, it opened its doors to other students, both diocesan and religious. In 1882, with the authorization of Pope Leo XIII, the philosophical faculty was added, and in 1896 the faculty of canon law. It became a pontifical college in 1909, and an Athenaeum in 1942. On March 7, 1963, the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, Pope John XXIII raised it to the rank of a university, with the title of Pontifical University of St. Thomas Aquinas in Rome.

In 1955, the Institute of Social Sciences was added to the philosophical faculty, and in 1974 this institute became a separate faculty of social sciences. The Institute of Spirituality and the Institute "Mater Ecclesiae" were added to the theological faculty in 1972, with the right to confer the title of Master in Religious Sciences.

Ukrainian students began to frequent the Angelicum in the year 1928/29, when the Athenaeum of Propaganda Fide, which they had been attending, was transferred from Piazza di Spagna to the Janiculum. After the Seminary of St. Josafat was built on the Janiculum, and the students from the Ruthenian College moved into it from Piazza Madonna dei Monti, the Kyivan rite students ceased to attend the Angelicum and returned to the Athenaeum of Propaganda Fide in 1932/33.

During World War II, two Redemptorists of Kyivan rite studied at the Angelicum, and immediately after the war, some Basilians went there. Recently several students from St. Josafat, and from Santa Sofija and some Basilians began to study there, and some students from the Pittsburgh diocese living at the North American College. One of the factors which drew these students was that the Angelicum introduced courses to be taught in the English language.

3. ANSELMIANUM (Anselm)

The Anselmianum was founded on the Aventine in 1687 for the Benedictines of Monte Cassino by Pope Innocent XI. In 1837, it was closed on account of the plague, and was reopened by Pope Pius IX for the whole Benedictine Order in 1867. After having been closed in 1870, it was opened again by Pope Leo XIII for both religious and secular students, with faculties in theology, philosophy and canon law and the right to confer academic degrees in all three faculties. In 1933 it became a Pontifical Athenaeum. In 1952 the Institute of Monastic Studies was added to the faculty of theology, and in 1962 the Liturgical Institute, which became a faculty in 1978.

The Basilians began to attend the Anselmianum when in 1960 the General Curia was transferred to the Aventine, close to the Anselmianum.

4. ANTONIANUM (Anton)

1890 —

The first idea to found in Rome a Studium Generale for all members of the Franciscan Order originated in 1883, and the Collegium Sancti Antonii Patavini in Urbe, located on Via Merulana, 124, was opened in 1890, with the approval of Pope Leo XIII. In 1933, it was raised to Athenaeum Antonianum de Urbe, with three faculties of theology, philosophy and canon law, with the right to confer academic degrees in all three faculties. In 1938, it was made pontifical, and in 1952, Pope Pius XII gave permission for students other than Franciscans to be admitted. In 1957, the Institutum Apostolicum was added, and 1960, the Institutum Biblicum Franciscanum, which had been founded in Jerusalem in 1923. The Institutum Paedagogicum, which had originated in Grottaferrata, was transferred to Rome in 1967 and joined to the philosophical faculty of the Antonianum. In the same year, courses in catechetics were approved as part of the Apostolic Institute. The Institute of Spirituality, originated by the Capuchins in 1970, became a section of the theological faculty of the Antonianum in 1972.

There were four Kyivan rite students who studied pedagogy at the Antonianum, and one who studied catechetics.

5. BIBLICUM (Bibl)

1909 —

The Pontifical Biblical Institute was founded in 1909 by Pope Pius X. To it was added the faculty of Study of the Ancient Orient in 1932. The Jesuits are entrusted with its direction, and it is connected with the Gregorianum as an autonomous entity.

One of the alumni was promoted to the hierarchy of Byzantine Kyivan rite — Ljubačivskýj.

6. GREGORIANUM (Greg)

1551 —

The Pontifical Gregorian University was founded by St. Ignatius Loyola in 1551. Its initial name was the Collegium Romanum, and it was a college for the humanities, philosophy and theology being added in 1553. In 1582, Pope Gregory XIII erected a special building close to the church of St. Ignatius, which still exists under the name of Collegium Romanum. Because Pope Gregory built the school, it began to be called the Gregorianum as well as the Collegium Romanum. When the Jesuits were suppressed, the direction of the college was entrusted to the secular clergy. In 1814 the Jesuits were reinstated, and in 1824 they took back the direction of the college. In 1873, the college was confiscated by the Italian government, and the Gregorianum moved to the German College which was under the protection of the Austrian emperor. After World War I, a new building was erected in Piazza della Pilotta, and in 1930, the Gregorianum was transferred there. It is the oldest university in Rome, having obtained the title of university from Pope Paul IV in 1556.

Ever since 1553, philosophy and theology were taught at the college. In 1876 studies in canon law were added. In 1918 was added the Institutum Culturae Religiosae Superioris pro Laicis, in 1919 the Cursus Magisterii Sacrae Theologiae, in 1922 the Cursus Magisterii Philosophiae, and in 1924 the Schola Litteris Latinis Tradendis. The same year, the Biblical and Oriental Institutes were joined with the Gregorianum. In 1932, to the faculties of theology, philosophy and canon law were added the faculty of church history and the faculty of missiology. In 1951 began the Institute of Social Sciences, which in 1972 became a faculty. In 1958 began the Institute of Spirituality.

Byzantine Kyivan rite students went to the Gregorianum during the 17th and 18th centuries to study philosophy and theology. In 1904, Basilians began to go for philosophy and theology, and after World War I several secular and monastic seminarians and priests went to study philosophy, theology, canon law, church history and spirituality.

Nine of the alumni of the Gregorianum became bishops in the Kyivan rite — Dudaš, Hornjak, Kornyljak, Kryvyj, Ljubačivskyj, Martynec, Romža, Segedi and Slipyj.

7. LATERANUM (Lat)

1773 —

In 1773, after the suppression of the Jesuits, the teaching of philosophy and theology, together with the building of the Collegium Romanum was given to the secular clergy of Rome. The Jesuits were reinstated in 1814, and the building of the Collegium Romanum and the teaching was returned to them in 1824. The secular clergy, with their school and students of philosophy and theology then moved to a building by the church of St. Apollinaris, which had formerly been the site of the Germanicum, and the school started to be called the Apollinarium. In 1853, the school was declared a seminary for the secular clergy of the Pontifical State, and obtained, besides philosophy and theology, the faculty of canon and civil law. In 1913, the school was transferred to a building by the Lateran Basilica. In 1932, the school was reorganized according to the dictates of the Apostolic Constitution Deus scientiarum Dominus. For canon law three years of study were required, and for both canon and civil law four years were required. In 1933/37, a new building was erected, and in 1959, it obtained the title of Pontificia Universitas Lateranensis.

Kyivan rite students went there to study canon law and Utrumque jus.

Two of the students were promoted to the Kyivan rite hierarchy - Chymij and Herbut.

8. LOUVAIN
1835 —

Louvain (Löwen) University began in 1425 with three faculties of philosophy, law and medicine, a fourth faculty of theology being added in 1432. It was modelled on the Universities of Paris, Cologne and Vienna, and its first professors were taken from Paris and Cologne. In 1797 it was suppressed by France, and reopened in 1816 as a state university, which was replaced by the Catholic University in 1835, with four faculties and the rector appointed or removed by the hierarchy.

Redemptorists of Byzantine Kyivan rite studied in Louvain after World War I and during World War II. After terminating their regular studies, all of them returned to Halyčyna or to Canada. Only one of them obtained degrees, doctorate of biblical theology and magister aggregatus of biblical theology — Maksym Hermanjuk, later Metropolitan of Winnipeg.

9. PONTIFICAL INSTITUTE FOR ORIENTAL STUDIES (PIOS)
1917 —

The Pontifical Institute for Oriental Studies was officially founded by Pope Benedict XV, in the Motu proprio Orientis Catholici of October 15, 1917. Courses were begun in the academic year 1918/19 with 40 students. The first rector was Father A. Delpuch, and the first doctoral degree in Scientiis ecclesiasticis orientalibus was awarded in 1920.

The earliest location of the institute in Piazza Scossacavalli, close to the Basilica of St. Peter, was hard to get to without convenient transportation, and after the first four years the number of students had decreased. The library was not as yet organized, and the students had difficulty in studying without access to reference books. Therefore, Idelfonse Schuster, OSB (president of the institute from 1919 to 1922, and abbot of St. Paul outside the Walls) proposed to Pope Pius XI that the Oriental Institute be joined to the Biblical Institute, which was close to the center of town and which already possessed a good library. At the same time, it was proposed that the direction would be given to the Jesuits, who had charge of the Biblicum, thus giving greater cohesion to the teaching faculty. It was so decided, and in the September of 1922, the Oriental Institute was joined to the Biblicum and transferred to the same building, each institute keeping intact its own unique character and purpose.

After the Jesuits took over the direction, their General, Father Vladimir Ledochowski, appointed Father Michael d'Herbigny as the president (1922-1932), and courses began on November 15, 1922 with classes also available at the Biblicum and with many new professors. The number of students did not increase, however, and between the years 1922 and 1927 they averaged only 13 in number. After 1927 they gradually began to increase, but in 1932/33 they dropped again, as a result of the extension of the number of years required for the doctorate from two to three, by order of Pope Pius XI in the Apostolic Constitution Deus scientiarum Dominus of May 24, 1931. Between 1936 and 1962, except for the war years 1943/45 when classes were reduced, the regular student body averaged 27 in number, although many other students attended for extraordinary courses.

In the meantime, PIOS was becoming more and more involved with Russian affairs, first of all at the time of the famine of 1923/24, and then because the president, Father d'Herbigny, who had been secretly consecrated bishop by Nunzio Pacelli of Berlin (later Pope Pius XII), in turn secretly consecrated five bishops in Soviet Russia. These facts had an influence on PIOS and formed a basis for its future development.

At about the same time, the Holy See purchased a block of buildings close to the Basilica of St. Mary Major. Pope Pius XI gave the Church of S. Antonio Abate to the Russicum, whereas the former hospice of S. Antonio with its old school was designated for PIOS. By 1926, the reconstruction of the school had progressed sufficiently for PIOS to be transferred there, and for courses to begin on November 14, 1926. There was space for a modern library, which was solemnly inaugurated by Cardinal Sincero on November 14, 1929, the Latin rite feast of St. Josafat. Later, in 1953/54, a second level over the auditorium was added to serve as stacks for the library.

From the beginning, courses were taught in three departments — theology, liturgy and history. Courses in canon law began to be offered in 1922, and on July 2, 1963, a special department in oriental canon law was created, and a new degree was available — DrJCO.

From 1923 to 1934, PIOS published volumes 1-100 of the Orientalia Christiana. In 1935, Father E. Herman, editor of the publication and rector of the institute (1932-1951), decided to divide the publication into two parts. One would be specifically for monographs, the Orientalia Christiana Analecta, and the other would be for articles and reviews, the Orientalia Christiana Periodica.

From the foundation of PIOS until the present date, there have been 189 students of Kyivan rite to have studied there. Of these, 165 were enrolled in the faculty of scientiis ecclesiasticis orientalibus (SEO), with 85 as ordinary students and 80 as extraordinary. Of these, 31 received the license degree (LicSEO) and 21 earned their doctoral degree (DrSEO). In the field of jus canonicum orientale (JCO), there were 24 ordinary students and one extraordinary, of whom 11 received the degree LicJCO and 3 earned the degree DrJCO.

Five of the alumni of PIOS have been promoted to the Kyivan rite hierarchy. There were three who were ordinary students — Praško, Marusyn and Keresztes, and two who were extraordinary — Slipyj and Kornyljak.

10. REGINA MUNDI (RegMun)
1954 —

The Pontifical Institute of Regina Mundi is an international institute for sisters, members of secular institutes and those intending to work in the apostolate. Its purpose is to prepare the students for internal offices of government and formation, and for the external works of the apostolate, especially the teaching of religion in feminine higher education.

By a decree of December 25, 1970, the Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education authorized the theological faculty of the Gregorianum, with which the Institute is joined, to confer the degree of "Magisterium in Scientiis Religiosis" on the students of the institute.

Three Sisters Služebnyci have attended the institute.

11. THERESIANUM (Theres)
1964 —

The theological faculty of St Theresa of Jesus and of St. John of the Cross was founded in 1935 by the Discalced Carmelites on the Janiculum in Piazza S.

Pancrazio, 5A. It became pontifical in 1963, and the Pontifical Institute of Spirituality, the "Theresianum", was erected in 1964, with the right to confer academic degrees in theology with the specialization in spirituality. It is open to all students — religious and secular clergy, sisters and laity, who have finished their higher studies.

12. URBANIANUM (Urb)

The school of the Urbanian College of the Propaganda Fide was opened in 1627 in the Piazza di Spagna. From the beginning, it had all the same privileges as the Studium Romanum, the German College, and the English and Greek Colleges, with the right to confer doctorates in philosophy and theology on its own students. In 1648, the school was opened to all the colleges under the Propaganda Fide. The school was transferred to the new building on the Janiculum in 1928, and in 1933 the Institutum Missionarium Scientificum was added, with the right to confer academic degrees. To the institute was added canon law in 1943, so that it had two programs of courses, missiological and juridical. In 1960, the Institute of the History of Atheism was added to the school. In 1962 the school, the Athenaeum Urbanianum de Propaganda Fide, became the Pontifical Urbanian University.

Students of Kyivan rite attended the Urbanianum nearly from the beginning. At first they came from the College of the Propaganda Fide and the Greek College. Later, from 1897 to 1928, they came from the Ruthenian College, and after 1932 until now from St. Josafat. The students did their philosophical and theological studies there.

There were 9 students living at the College of the Propaganda Fide who attended the Urbanianum and later became bishops of the Kyivan rite. There were 29 students from the Greek College before the 19th century who became Kyivan rite bishops, and the majority of these attended the Urbanianum, but the records are not clear as to how many. During the 19th century, one of the alumni of the Urbanianum was made bishop — Sylvester Sembratovych, and there were 9 students during the 20th century who were promoted to the Kyivan rite hierarchy — Bučko, Bukatko, Čarneckyi, Hornjak, Kocisko, Kocylovskyj, Kornyljak, Praško and Šmondjuk.

CHAPTER IV

THEOLOGICAL STUDIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF VIENNA

Before giving the historical sketches and student lists of the various groups of Kyivan rite students of Vienna, it would be helpful to present a brief description of theological study at the University of Vienna, which all of the students attended. The University of Vienna was founded in 1365 by Rudolph IV of Habsburg, with three faculties: of philosophy, law and medicine. The theological faculty could not be obtained at that time from the pope, on account of opposition from the University of Prague and its founder, Emperor Charles IV, and was not opened until the year 1384. Like all other universities, the university conferred the degrees of bachelor, license and doctor of theology. The study of theology was divided into 1) moral theology for those who were preparing for pastoral work, and 2) scholastic theology for those who were preparing to obtain a degree and teach. The important degree was the license, or magisterium docendi, awarded to those who passed the comprehensive examination in total theology, and therefore had the right to teach. The doctorate was an honorary title conferred on selected outstanding teachers. Later, in some universities, the doctorate was given immediately after license, or at the same time.

Empress Maria Theresa passed some reforms at the University of Vienna in 1752, and the bachelor degree was given to those who had passed the examination in speculative theology, whereas the doctorate was given to those who had passed the examination in total theology. The examinations were oral and lasted for two hours. On October 3, 1774, she introduced a more drastic reform, introducing four examinations in place of the one in total theology, which were called the four rigorosa. This reform was reconfirmed, with slight changes and explanations, on August 30, 1777, and it was reconfirmed again, with minor modifications, on January 7, 1809, and has remained in effect until now. The four rigorosa were in 1) church history and canon law, 2) dogmatic theology and polemics, 3) moral and pastoral theology, and 4) biblical studies of both old and new testaments. The decree of January 7, 1809 specified that in order to be admitted to the rigorosa, one had to have finished his regular theological study, and present testimonial that he had passed all the examinations with good grades. With special permission, the student could take one rigorosum examination at the end of his last year of theology. The rigorosa could be taken in any order, but one could not follow the other in a period shorter than three months. Each examination was to last for two hours, and be taken in the presence of the rector and four examiners, of whom the first should be the professor of the subject being examined. The other three examiners were appointed by the director of studies. The rigorosum in biblical studies could be taken in two parts, old and new testaments. After all the rigorosa were finished, the thesis could be presented for approval to the director of studies. After the thesis was approved, the student had to give a public defense of 50 propositions selected from all theological subjects. After the successful defense of these propositions, the student received the degree of Doctor of Theology.

In 1829, it was decided that in all of the Austrian Hungarian State, all four of the rigorosa had to be taken at the same university; the only exception was for students at St. Augustine Institute who had passed a rigorosum in another university than the University of Vienna. On February 22, 1870 it was permitted for all professors, doctors and doctorandi to be present for the rigorosum examinations, and the director could invite others, if he so wished. In 1873 in place of the previous thesis, an extensive dissertation was prescribed.

The first students of Byzantine Kyivan rite who studied in Vienna in the Pontifical College, did not study at the University of Vienna, since the college was under the direction of the Jesuits, and the Jesuits did their own teaching if they did not have an academy or university in the city. The students of the Pontifical College are therefore not included in this chapter, but are to be found in Chapter I.

The Byzantine Kyivan rite students who attended the University of Vienna are here divided into nine groups. The first were those who lived at the Barbareum (1775-1784), followed by those who lived in the Stadtkonvikt (1804-1848), and at the Greek Catholic Central Seminary (1852-1893). In 1901-1902, there was a group who left Lviv in protest and in 1914-1918, there were students in Vienna during World War I. After World War I and during World War II there were some students accepted at the Pazmaneum. After these groups are included two special groups of doctorandi — those living at St. Augustine Institute (1816-1918) and those not living at St. Augustine or externists (1808-1945). The final group is of all those who received the degree of Doctor of Theology from the University of Vienna.

A. HISTORICAL SKETCHES

1. BARBAREUM (Vn1Barb) 1775-1784

The idea to found a seminary for Byzantine Rite Catholic students had its beginning in Viennese government circles and was heartily supported by Empress

Maria Theresa. Its purpose was to provide better education for the clergy, and to strengthen the Byzantine Catholic Church, its clergy and its faithful, in those territories dependent upon Vienna. At first, the idea was for the seminary to educate only Romanian, Serbian and Croatian students. At the insistence of the Bishops of Mukačevo, Lviv and Peremyšl, the scope was extended to include the Ukrainian secular clergy, and at the insistence of the Basilian Order, to include Basilian students.

The seminary was organized for 46 students and 4 superiors. The students were made up of 6 from Lviv, 6 from Peremyšl, 9 from Mukačevo, 6 from Križevci, 9 from Fogaras, 6 from Great Varadin, 2 Basilians from Halyčyna, and 2 Basilians from Zakarpattja. From 1779 on, 2 more were added from the Spis deanery, which was under the jurisdiction of the Latin bishop, raising the number of students to 48. The superiors were 1) prefect, 2) ephemerius, 3) vice-prefect and 4) vice-ephemerius. The ephemerius was mainly a spiritual director, whereas either the vice-ephemerius or the vice-prefect acted as first prefect of studies and deputy. (The second prefect of studies was usually a student). The prefect was the rector or general administrator.

The name of the seminary was officially established as Regium Generale Seminarium Graeco-Catholicum Viennae ad Sanctam Barbaram. The Regulations, after much deliberation, were published in the summer of 1780, and were promulgated on October 15th of the same year. The empress reserved to herself and to her successors the right to make any change in the regulations. They were compiled by the prefect, Josafat Bastašyč, with the assistance of Bishop Vasyl Božičkovič of Križevci, both former students of the Greek College in Rome. The regulations, as a result, were modelled on those of the Greek College, and later were to serve as model for those of the General Seminary of Lviv.

Acting as the immediate authority of the seminary was the Hofstiftungskommission (Aulica commissio piarum causarum). This commission was responsible to the Österreichische-böhmisches Hofkanzlei until December 17, 1779, and from that time on to the Königliche Hungarische Hofkanzlei. There were four Hofkanzleien at the service of the empress, 1) the Austrian-Bohemian, 2) the Hungarian, 3) the Galician, and 4) the Transylvanian. Because most of the students at the seminary were from territories represented by the Hungarian Hofkanzlei, at their request Maria Theresa gave them control of the seminary. Supreme authority was it the hands of the empress herself.

The empress donated the Church of St. Barbara and the seminary building, both of which had formerly belonged to the Jesuits, and which had been confiscated at the time of their suppression. She gave sufficient money for the remodelling of the seminary building, and for adapting the church to Byzantine rite services. She ordered that the seminary be supported by religious funds from the respective provinces from which the students were taken. When there was special need, such as filling the library, she was very generous. She ordered an annual donation from the royal reserves, consisting of 15 sotnars (100 kilograms = 1 sotnar) of salt, 9 hectoliters of oil and 600 buckets of wine. She ordered that the seminary be opened on her name day (October 15) each year. In 1776, when the remodelled church was ready for use, it opened on October 15th, and she attended the services, which were celebrated by Bishop Bačynskyj of Mukačevo. During the Mass, she was assisted by explanation from Bishop Božičkovič of Križevci. On October 20, 1775, she invited the students to see Schoenbrun, her summer residence, and gave them dinner there. In 1778, she received in private audience the students who graduated that year, and ordered that breakfast would be given to them the next day. In 1780, she received the graduating students in private audience and gave them dinner.

The empress appointed the superiors of the seminary personally. The office of general inspector was held by Bishop Božičkovič of Križevci for the entire period of the existence of the seminary. The first prefect was Josafat Bastašić (1775-1780), and the last was Atanasiј Gvozdanovič (1783-1784). All three were Basilians and former students of the Greek College and from the diocese of Križevci. The second of the three prefects was Jakiv Aron (1780-1783), a secular priest, and a Romanian from the diocese of Great Varadin, also a former student of the Greek College. Jeronym Strileckyj, a Galician Basilian, and also a former student of the Greek College, was ephemerius for the whole period of the existence of the seminary.

The seminary was opened on October 15, 1775, with 22 students, and only 2 officers — the prefect and the vice-ephemerius.

The office of vice-prefect and prefect of studies was held from 1776 to 1782 by Samuel Klein, a Romanian and former student of the Greek College, a Basilian and later bishop, and one of the fathers of Romanian cultural life. He published one of the first Romanian grammars, the history of Romanian Dacia, and some 80 other works. The second vice-prefect was Mychajlo Ščavnyckyj, a former student of the Barbareum. He was in office from 1782 until the closing of the Barbareum in 1784, when he was transferred to the new General Seminary of Lviv with all of the students from Halyčyna, becoming the rector of the General Seminary (1784-1787).

The seminarians frequented the courses at the University of Vienna, having only two special teachers at the seminary itself, one for Greek and one for German. Training in chant and liturgy was also given at the seminary. Altogether, 116 students were accepted at the seminary, of whom 58 finished their studies there, and 33 finished at other seminaries after the closing of the Barbareum (25 in Lviv, 7 in Agria, and 1 in Vienna). Altogether 91 students finished their studies. Of the others, 7 left on account of sickness, one went to Rome, 10 left, 4 were dismissed, and 3 died. From the diocese of Lviv there were 17 students, of whom 10 finished at the Barbareum and 6 finished in Lviv. From Peremyšl there were 12 students, of whom 5 finished at the Barbareum and 2 in Lviv. From Mukačevo there were 32 students, of whom 15 finished at the Barbareum, 3 in Agria and 8 in Lviv. From Križevci there were 17 students, of whom 7 finished at the Barbareum, 2 in Lviv and 1 in Rome. According to nationality, there were 61 Ukrainians, 14 Croatians and 41 Romanians.

In the seminary there were 10 servants: a cook with 2 helpers, a porter, a tailor, and 5 others with minor assignments.

The students were selected by their bishops, and the Basilian students by their superiors, and the final acceptance was given by the Hofkanzlei. If the students showed lack of ability or industry, they could be dismissed by the prefect, who was obliged only to notify their bishops and the Hofkanzlei. If they caused disorder or became politically unreliable, the prefect had to refer them to their bishop for admonition, and then to the Hofkanzlei, after which they were dismissed if they did not show repentance and improvement.

The seminary was closed on May 1, 1784, and all the students were transferred to the Latin seminary in Vienna to finish the academic year. In the following autumn, the Galicians went to Lviv with vice-prefect Ščavnyckyj, and all the others went to Eger (Agria) with prefect Gvozdanovyc̄. The prefect took all the Barbareum archives with him to Eger. In 1785, when Eger was closed by Emperor Joseph II, the students and archives were transferred to Lviv.

The students of the Barbareum had a great impact on Byzantine Catholic life. The Barbareum was the first interdiocesan seminary of Eastern rite, after the Greek College in Rome. Of the students, 5 became bishops of the Byzantine Kyivan rite (Skorodynskyj and Anhelovyc̄ of Lviv, Povčij of Mukačevo, Stanyč of Križevci and Tarkovyc̄ of Prjašiv), and one a bishop of the Byzantine Romanian rite (Vulkan of Great Varadin). Several other students became professors in their local seminaries, high officials in episcopal curias, or were otherwise influential, such as the writer Harasevyc̄, the author of Annales Ecclesiae Ruthenae.

2. STADTKONVIKT (Vn2Konv) 1803-1848

Das Kaiserliche und königliche Stadtkonvikt was founded in 1803 by Emperor Franz I. It had fifteen places reserved for Ruthenians from the three dioceses of Lviv, Peremyšl and Cholm, which at that time belonged to the Austrian Empire. The first students from Lviv and Peremyšl arrived on November 15, 1804, and those from Cholm on December 7. The seminary was under the direction of the Latin Piaristen Fathers, but the pastor of St. Barbara had to oversee the Ruthenian students, and report to the metropolitan about their behaviour. After Cholm was passed over to Russia, only students from Lviv and Peremyšl remained at the convict. In 1811, Emperor Franz I ordered that some students from Mukačevo and Prjašiv who were studying at the seminary of Tyrnava were to be transferred to the Stadtkonvikt. Some of the students took only the regular seminary courses, but others continued their studies after the regular four years and worked for degrees, and still others for higher training went to St. Augustine Institute.

The Stadtkonvikt Seminary of Vienna was closed in 1848. Of the students, were promoted to the hierarchy of the Kyivan Church - Jachymovyč, Lytvynovyč, Josyf Sembratovyc and Snihurskyj. Among the alumni was also Isydor Šaranevyč, later known for his historical works.

3. GREEK CATHOLIC CENTRAL SEMINARY (Vn3Centr) 1852-1893

The Greek Catholic Central Seminary of Vienna was founded because the Byzantine Kyivan rite bishops, after the closing of the Stadtkonvikt in 1848, insisted on their need for a seminary. In a letter of November 30, 1849 to the emperor, they stated their reasons for wanting the seminary to be in Vienna: the educational facilities were better, the libraries were more adequate, Vienna was a cultural center with galleries and art museums, a better facility in the German language could be obtained, and living together with other students would promote greater unity among the peoples of the Austrian fatherland.

In the beginning there were supposed to be twenty places for students assigned, ten for Peremyšl and ten for Lviv. In 1852 the emperor agreed. The building of the former Stadtkonvikt at Schönlaterngasse, 10 was assigned to them. In addition to the students from Lviv and Peremyšl, there came four from Mukačevo, four from Prjašiv, two from Križevci, three from Great Varadin, and eight from Fogaras, Szamos-Ujvar and Lugos. In 1856, these numbers were modified to nine from Lviv, nine from Peremyšl, four from Mukačevo, four from Prjašiv, six from Fogaras, four from Great Varadin, two from Lugos, two from Szamos-Ujvar, three Basilians from Halyčyna, and two doctorandi from Lviv and Peremyšl. In 1873 all 26 Hungarian Greek rite students were taken away by the Hungarian government and placed in Hungarian seminaries. After they left, the numbers were changed to ten from Lviv, ten from Peremyšl, two from Križevci and three Basilians. In 1885 the two students from Križevci were transferred to Zagreb (Agram), and the numbers were rearranged to ten from Lviv, nine from Peremyšl and six from Stanslaviv. Included in that number were two doctorandi who were sent to St. Augustine on account of the diminished space. Before the seminary closed in 1893, the government asked the opinions of several people. Among those who advised its closing was Bishop Peleš, a former student, doctorandus and later rector of that seminary.

The rectors of the central seminary were at the same time the pastors of St. Barbara Church, and the spiritual fathers were assistant pastors of the same church. The rectors were Spyrydon Lytvynovyč (1852-1857), Mykola Nagy (1857-1862), Jakiv Cipanovskyj (1863-1874), Julijan Peleš (1875-1883) and Teofil Sembratovyč (1883-1893).

Of the students, three were promoted to the hierarchy — Hranylovych, Peleš and Tovt. Other former students were Kyrylo Studynskyj, member of the Ukrainian Academy of Science, Filaret Kolessa, well known musican and composer, and Ivan Poluj, co-translator of the Holy Bible.

4. PROTEST GROUP OF 1901 (Vn4Prot)

1901-1902

In 1901, there came to Vienna a group of seminarians from Lviv, who, together with students from all of the other faculties, left the University of Lviv in protest to what was happening at that university, and went to other universities to continue their studies. This list is of those who selected Vienna in which to continue their theological studies. The students were protesting abuses in the University of Lviv, which was in the hands of the Poles, who mistreated the others, while the Austrian government remained silent. After a year, when the Austrian government promised to intervene, most of the students returned to Lviv, but some went to other universities.

5. WORLD WAR I STUDENTS (Vn5WWI)

1914-1918

After the outbreak of World War I, the Russians within a few months had occupied Lviv and Peremyšl, and a number of students left the country. Those who escaped to Vienna, or were in military service in Vienna, made an effort to continue their theological studies while there. There were always students between the years 1914-1918, who lived privately or in military barracks. They have been included here together in one list, although they were scattered individuals, and did not form a specific group.

6. PAZMANEUM (Vn6Paz)

The Pazmaneum was founded in Vienna in 1623 by Peter Cardinal Pázmány, Archbishop of Esztergom (Gran, Strigonia). Cardinal Pázmány was born in 1570, and was baptized in the Calvinistic Church. At the age of 13 he became a Catholic, and entered the Jesuits at age 17, later becoming well known as a preacher, missionary, polemist and teacher. For a while he taught at the University of Graz. Dispensed from the Jesuits in order to enter the Somaschi Congregation, he became the Archbishop of Esztergom and Primate of Hungary in 1616, and died in 1637. He is considered as one of the greatest primates of Hungary.

As the initial capital for the foundation of the seminary, Cardinal Pázmány donated 100,000 florins, and later added 15,411 florins in gold and silver. In his last will, he left it 45,000 florins. This capital, plus various other donations, formed the financial basis and means of support for the Pazmaneum, which exists until the present day.

The first 13 students arrived on May 25, 1624 and donned the blue soutan of the seminary. The intention of the founder was to educate priests for pastoral work, following the casuistic course of studies, which was shorter than the regular scholastic course, but by the end of his life the overwhelming majority of the students were enrolled in the longer scholastic course of studies. The seminary was for the diocese of Esztergom, although students from other Hungarian dioceses could be accepted, on the condition that they agreed to work in the diocese of Esztergom for the first three years after finishing their studies. The cardinal reserved to himself and his successors the right to admit students, and sede vacante they were to be admitted by the diocesan chapter of Esztergom. The rectors of the seminary were Jesuits until the suppression of the Order, and after 1802 the rector was taken from the members of the chapter of Esztergom.

In 1784, Emperor Joseph II transferred the students to Pressburg (Bratislava) General Seminary. In 1802, the Pazmaneum was reopened in Vienna with 28 students. In 1804, the chapter added 6,000 florins to the foundation, which increased the student places to 29. In 1811, Emperor Franz I increased the number of students to 60 by transferring 31 of the students from the diocese of Esztergom, who had been studying in Tyrnava, to the Pazmaneum. In 1813, the emperor obliged the bishops of 15 dioceses belonging to Hungary to send two students each, and to pay 300 florins annually for the education of each, raising the number of students to 90.

Most of the students came only for higher studies, and usually took the rigorosum in biblical studies. During the turmoil of 1848 caused by the revolution, all the students left Vienna. The Hungarian government wanted them to study in Hungary, but the primate was opposed, since the founder had specified that they study in Vienna. The seminary was therefore reopened in Vienna, and the Hungarian government obliged itself to pay first 300 and then 400 florins for each student who was not supported by the foundation.

The Pazmaneum was for Latin rite students, and Byzantine Kyivan rite students were accepted there only after World War I and during World War II, coming from the dioceses of Mukačovo, Prjašiv and Hajdudorog and the administration of Miskolc.

7. ST.AUGUSTINE INSTITUTE (Vn7DocSA) 1816-1918

Das höhere weltpriestliche Bildungsinstitut zum hl. Augustin (Institutum sublimioris educationis cleri secularis S. Augustini) was founded in 1816 by Emperor Franz I on the advice of Dr. Jacob Frint, the pastor of the Hofburg chapel. Its purpose was to educate the secular clergy for positions as professors, rectors and preachers and for higher church offices. Assigned as the place for their use was the monastery of St. Augustine by the Hofburg, since there were not many monks there. There were 39 places, and each student had a private room. At first, only students from the hereditary lands of the emperor were accepted, but later students from other provinces were taken. Four places from Halyčyna were assigned, of which two were for Latin rite and two Greek rite. The students were supported by the emperor from religious or government funds, and they were accepted by the emperor himself after being proposed by the bishops. The rector was nominated by the emperor, and was always the pastor of the Hofburg chapel. The institute had its own spiritual director and usually four directors of studies. Accepted were only those who had finished their seminary studies with highest honors, and who were not over 30 years of age. The term of residence was three years. There were common prayers in morning and evening, daily meditation and spiritual reading, obligatory confession once a month, and two annual retreats — at the beginning of the academic year and before Easter. The government gave 1,500 florins monthly for the support of each student, and 300 florins monthly for the private expenses of each.

The number of students was not stable. In 1850 there were 27 of whom 8 were from Hungary, and in 1852 there were 38 students. Up until 1891, 840 students had attended the institute. There were supposed to be two places for Greek rite students from Halyčyna and two places for Latin rite, but for some reason, all four places for Halyčyna were often occupied by students of Latin rite.

The institute was known as St. Augustine Institute, or “Frintaneum”, after its initiator and first rector, Dr. Jacob Frint (1816-1825). It ceased to exist in 1918 with the fall of the Habsburg monarchy.

Former students promoted to the Kyivan rite hierarchy were Budka, Bocjan, Chomyšyn, Jachymovyč, Lakota, Lytvynovyč, Novak, Josyf Sembratovyč, Tovt and Valyj.

8. DOCTORANDI EXTERNISTS (Vn8DocExt)

1808-1946

In Vienna, between 1808 and 1945, there were almost continuously some students preparing for the rigorosa or for the doctorate. One group lived at the St. Augustine Institute (1816-1918), but the other group (1808-1945) was made up of students who lived in other places. Some were assistants or pastors of St. Barbara Church, some may have lived on at the Stadtkonvikt or at the Greek Catholic Central Seminary after they had finished their regular studies, in order to prepare for the rigorosa, and some lived privately. Some took a rigorosum, returned home and then came back again to take another, or to defend their doctoral thesis. For practical reasons, they have been grouped together as externists, although they did not form a specific group as such. They lived as single individuals, scattered inside or outside Vienna, with various means of support.

9. DOCTORS OF THEOLOGY AND PHILOSOPHY (Vn9DrTh), (Vn9DrPh)

1779-1947

It was considered useful to put together a list of all those who became Doctors of Theology at the University of Vienna, since they did not all live in the same place. Some have been included in the list of doctorandi at St. Augustine, and some in the list of extermist doctorandi, but some of the early names are not included in any list.

It is not clear whether the dates of doctoral degrees represent the date of the presentation of the thesis, that of the acceptance of the thesis, that of the defense of the thesis, or the date on which the diploma was received. Some theses were presented elsewhere and defended in Vienna (Laba), or presented in Vienna and defended elsewhere (Komar). There are some lists of doctorates, but they differ in times, names and dates, and there are some lists of theses, but they are incomplete, and those which are mentioned are either with dates of acceptance or without specification as to whether the dates are for the acceptance or defense of the theses. There are also some records of the rigorosa and doctorates, but in a fragmentary state. Some dates of doctorates were found in the chronicles of St. Barbara Church, but the chronicle is very incomplete.

All of the doctorates are from the faculty of theology, except for two during World War II which are from the faculty of philosophy (Gavlič and Katrij). Seminarians did not study philosophy in Vienna. The University offered a doctorate in canon law, but there is no record that any Kyivan rite student ever took the degree, although the question might arise in the case of Dr. Vasyl Mascjuch. He was appointed as a docent in canon law at the University of Lviv in 1912, but in his own schematism of Lemkivščyna of 1936, he is mentioned as having the Doctor of Theology degree, but no mention of his having a doctorate in canon law.

There are 13 doctors of theology from the University of Vienna who were promoted to the hierarchy of the Kyivan Church — Bocjan, Budka, Chomyšyn, Jachymovyč, Lakota, Ljatyševskyj, Lotockyj, Lytvynovyč, Peleš, Sembratovyč, Snihurskyj, Tovt and Valyj. There was one who was protoarchimandrite — Haluščynskyj.

CHAPTER V UKRAINIAN UNIVERSITIES

A. HISTORICAL SKETCHES

1. UKRAJINSKYJ KATOLYCKYJ UNIVERSYTET SV. KLYMENTA (UKU) Rome, 1963 —

The Ukrainian Catholic University of St. Clement in Rome was founded in 1963 by His Beatitude Josyf Cardinal Slipyj. In 1968, it moved into its own newly constructed building at Via Boccea, 478. The Church of St. Sofija was built next to the university, and was blessed in 1969 by Pope Paul VI.

Besides ordinary students, the university has been attended by several extraordinary students of theology, who wished to be ordained for the Archeparchy of Lviv, but were impeded for some reason from study in Rome as regular students. All of these extraordinary students began their studies either in Ukrainian seminaries before World War II, or in Latin rite seminaries. At UKU, they have all had to pass a comprehensive examination in theology before ordination.

The list of students here published is only of those students who were ordained by Cardinal Slipyj in Rome, having been either ordinary students, or extraordinary students who passed the comprehensive examination. They were ordained for the Archeparchy of Lviv, for the Salesians or for the Studites.

2. UKRAJINSKYJ VILNYJ UNIVERSYTET (UVU) Vienna, 1920-1921/Prague, 1921-1944/Munich, 1945 —

The Ukrainian Free University was founded in Vienna in 1920 by the Society of Ukrainian Journalists and Writers, the society of Friends of Instruction, and the Ukrainian Sociological Institute. It opened officially on January 17, 1921, with 12 professors and three docents, with two faculties - philosophy (65 students) and law (25 students). While the university was in the state of organization, Mychajlo Hruševskyj was the rector, Oleksander Kolessa was the dean of philosophy and Stepan Dnistrjanskyj was the dean of law. After it was organized, Oleksander Kolessa became the rector, with Stepan Rudnyckyj as dean of philosophy and Stepan Dobrjanskyj as dean of law.

The university was transferred from Vienna to Prague, and opened officially there on October 23, 1921. It accepted the rules of Karl's University and was recognized by the Czechoslovakian government. The official teaching language was Ukrainian. In 1924 the teaching staff had increased to 36, and in 1933 to 46, of whom 30 were ordinary professors, several of them with well known names, including Mykola Andrusjak, Dmytro Antonovyč, Vasyl Bidnov, Dmytro Čyževskyj, Dmytro Dorošenko, Ivan Horbačevskyj, Oleksander Kolessa, Borys Krupnyckyj, Volodymyr Kubijovyč, Zenon Kuzelja, Vjačeslav Lypynskyj, Ivan Mirčuk, Symon Narižnyj, Jaroslav Pasternak, Jaroslav Rudnyckyj, Stepan Rudnyckyj, Roman Smal Stockyj, Stepan Smal Stockyj, Vadym Ščerbakivskyj, and Oleksander Šulhyn. In law were teaching among others, Stanislav Dnistrjanskyj, Oleksander Hajmanivskyj, Dmytro Laščenko, Oleksander Lotockyj, Vasyl Orelleckyj, Jaroslav Padoch, Volodymyr Starosolskyj, Serhij Šeluchyn and Andrij Jakovliv. The number of students for the first ten years averaged 385 - 221 in the philosophical faculty and 164 in law.

The university was closed in 1944 in Prague, and reopened in 1945/46 in Munich, with several of the former professors and several new ones, under the leadership of Vadym Ščerbakivskyj and Ivan Mirčuk. At present the rector is Volodymyr Janiv.

The university records from 1920 to 1945 are either lost or are inaccessible. From the year 1924 to 1939, there were 36 doctorates in philosophy awarded, and 95 doctorates in law and social economy. From 1946 to 1981 there were 171 doctorates in philosophy, and between 1946 and 1970 there were 128 doctorates in law and social economy. Of these, 18 of the doctors of philosophy were priests, and one doctor of law was a priest.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX OF STUDENTS

In the index, the dates represent the first year that the student is known to have been in a residence or in a school, or the year in which he received a degree. The date is followed by the name in code of a college, seminary, university, institute or other group (see list of abbreviations and special signs). The code name is followed by the number under which the student is to be found on the student list represented by the code name. In the case of a degree, the code name for the school is followed by the degree, before the student list number. If the title of the doctoral thesis is included in Chapter VI, it is indicated immediately under the degree itself, with the same date. If the student is listed in Chapter II as a religious student, no year is given, but only the name of his religious community and the number under which he is to be found on the list for that community. Each line of reference under the student's name represents a place in which the student is listed in the book. The sign * marks a bishop or metropolitan, and a student so marked will have at the end of his references his terms of office in the dioceses of which was he bishop, and his death date marked with + if it is known. Protoarchimandrites are marked ≠ in a similar manner.

For example, Ivan Praško was in 1937 at the College of St. Josafat in Rome, and listed as number 269 in the student list of that college. In 1940, he went to the Damascenum, where he is listed as number 2. In 1943, at the Pontifical Institute for Oriental Studies, he received the Doctor in Scientiis Ecclesiasticis Orientalibus and is listed under number 22 for that institute. His thesis is included in Chapter VI under the institute in the year 1943. He was made Exarch of Australia in 1958, and is still bishop there.

In all, there are 3,460 students listed. Of them, there are 118 who became bishops, of whom 24 became metropolitans. There are 24 who became protoarchimandrites for certain, and 25 if the student Inokentij Bilynskyj (1732 Lviv 59) is the same person as Hypatij Bilynskyj, who was protoarchimandrite from 1747 to 1751.

Information concerning the dioceses and terms of the bishops was taken from BLAŽEJOVSKYJ D., Byzantine Kyivan Rite Hierarchy (988-1983), in preparation. Information concerning protoarchimandrites was taken from BLAŽEJOVSKYJ D., De potestate Metropolitarum Kioviensium in clerum regularem, Rome 1973, pp 184-188.
